

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER RICHEST WHOLE MAN IN WORLD ON THE WITNESS-STAND

TOLD COURT HE KNEW BUT LITTLE ABOUT STANDARD OIL AFFAIRS, AS HE HAS BEEN OUT OF ALL BUSINESS FOR TWELVE YEARS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

CHICAGO, July 6.—The inquiry by Judge Landis of the United States District Court into the financial condition and resources of the Standard Oil company was begun and finished today inside of two hours. The court's object was to utilize this information in determining the amount of fines to be imposed upon the Standard Oil company of Indiana for violations of laws covering freight rates and rebating.

The chief witness was John D. Rockefeller, president of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey. Very little information was derived from him. He declared he had not been in active business for twelve years and said he had not been in the offices of the Standard Oil company for eight years. He declared that the capital stock of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey was about $100,000,000 and that its business was the refining of oil. He said that he did not know that the company had any other business and that if the Standard Oil company of New Jersey was interested in the ownership or operation of any refineries outside of the State of New Jersey he knew nothing of it.

From other witnesses Judge Landis derived the information that the Standard Oil company of New Jersey is the owner of a large proportion of the Standard Oil company of Indiana and that it also owned a large share of the Union Tank Line.

William D. Rockefeller and John D. Archbold were in court, but were not called upon to testify.

Called to the Witness Stand.

CHICAGO, July 6.—"John D. Rockefeller," called Judge Landis at 10:50 o'clock.

Amid great silence, the oil magnate rose and started for the chair. At the same moment the Standard Oil attorneys clustered around Judge Landis' desk and began a whispered consultation with him. Mr. Rockefeller hesitated.

"Sit right still a moment, John," said his brother, and Mr. Rockefeller resumed his seat.

Messrs. Miller and Rosenthal of the Standard Oil Company, United States District Attorney Sims and his assistant, Mr. Wilkerson, and Arthur Eddy, Chicago attorney for the Standard Oil Company, held a low-voiced conversation with Judge Landis, which stretched into the minutes, Mr. Rockefeller meanwhile waiting with a mildly curious expression on his face.

Finally an understanding as to his questioning was reached and the attorneys resumed their seats.

Mr. Rockefeller Takes Customary Oath

"John D. Rockefeller," again called Judge Landis, and the president of the Standard Oil Company left his seat, walked slowly to the witness chair at the right of Judge Landis and raised his right hand as the clerk administered the oath, "to swear to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, so help you God."

"I do," affirmed Mr. Rockefeller distinctly as the clerk finished. Mr. Rockefeller sat down, crossed his legs, leaned his right hand on his cane and put his left hand upon the judge's desk and looked intently at Judge Landis.

"Mr. Rockefeller," asked Judge Landis, "have you any connection with the Standard Oil Company?"

"I am president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey," said Mr. Rockefeller deliberately. "The position is purely an honorary one, and has been for the last eight or ten years," he resumed. "I have taken no active part in its affairs during that time."

"What is the outstanding capital stock of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey?" asked Judge Landis.

"Object," ejaculated Mr. Miller.

"Overruled," said Judge Landis.

Standard Oil Capitalized for $100,000,000

"I believe about $100,000,000 is outstanding," said Mr. Rockefeller.

John D. Rockefeller

CROWDS FOUGHT TO GET INTO THE COURTROOM

CHICAGO, July 6.—With his attorneys and eleven other officers of the Standard Oil Company, including William Rockefeller, John D. Rockefeller, the so-called richest man in the world, faced a Federal courtroom filled with attorneys and spectators today. He will be subjected to an examination conducted in person by Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, who has it within his power to hold the oil king in contempt of court should the witness decline to answer questions.

It was believed by those interested in the case that when Mr. Rockefeller raised his hand and accepted the oath he would tell all he knows concerning the financial relations between the Standard Oil Company of Indiana and the holding company of New Jersey.

He Is Immune From Prosecution.

Whether he will lay bare any of the financial secrets is to be determined when Judge Landis propounds his questions. Whatever may be Mr. Rockefeller's replies, he will in no way incriminate himself for under the law he is immune from prosecution.

Because of the interest that has been aroused over Mr. Rockefeller's testimony.

AUTOMOBILISTS! BEWARE! MAYOR MOTT AND POLICE FORCE ARE AFTER YOU!

If You Don't Quit Speeding Over Our New Streets, You May Have to Face a Fine and a Few Days in Jail.

Four John Doe complaints were made out by Prosecuting Attorney Decoto this morning and sworn to by Street Inspector S. W. Irving, charging a number of automobilists with violating the new city ordinance prohibiting the passage of vehicles over bituminous streets while in course of construction. A number of reports have reached the street inspector lately to the effect that auto drivers have been disregarding the new ordinance in various places throughout the city and it is probable that the number of complaints sworn to will be largely increased within the next few days.

About seventy-five motor enthusiasts have incurred the displeasure of the authorities by offending in this way, and in all probability they will be haled into the Police Court next week to explain their misconduct. A few days ago Mayor Mott noticed an auto shooting down Twelfth street, between Madison and Oak. The street is closed at this point, owing to the construction work which is being done and barricades are placed between the curbs and the car tracks on both sides. As the Mayor was crossing 12th street at Madison he saw the approaching automobile start in between the car tracks at the other end of the closed square.

Desiring to caution the driver against breaking the law, the Mayor stood between the tracks at Madison street and motioned to him to stop. Apparently, however, the motorist had no mind to hear an official remonstrance, for he came through the opening with a rush and the Mayor narrowly escaped being run down. Desiring to ascertain whether automobilists generally were using close streets as thoroughfares, Mott called the attention of Inspector Irving to the occurrence and a watch was placed on all blocks where construction work is being done.

As a result the numbers of near fourscore offending automobiles in the city will be reduced to a few, and proceedings will be commenced once to insure a proper observance of the ordinance in the future.

HIDING PLACE OF THIEF IS REVEALED BY SWEETHEAR

Stolen Fortune Placed in Bank by Embezzler; Woman Says She Will Keep It There.

NEW YORK, July 6.—Chester B. Runyan, the paying teller of the Windsor Trust Company, who is alleged to have stolen $36,317 from that company, and Mrs. Laura Carter, the woman who betrayed his hiding place to the police after he had given her part of the stolen funds, were arraigned in the Police Court today. Runyan's spirit seemed to be broken by the disastrous outcome of his stealing and his demeanor was hapless, listless and unresponsive.

He passed a sleepless night in the police station and showed the effect of his worry when he was subjected to the gaze of a curious crowd on his way to police headquarters. Mrs. Carter bore her arrest with nonchalance.

She slept unconcernedly in the matrons' quarters at the police station and undertook the journey down town undisturbed by the predicament into which her escapade with Runyan had thrown her. She shielded her face from the photographers upon the street as best she could, but chatted to the reporters in a lively fashion before the subway train. Runyan, however, had little to say to anybody, appeared to be terribly distressed.

WHERE IS THE MONEY?
What had become of $42,000, the total of the company's stolen money, was still a mystery so far as the public was concerned up to the time the two prisoners were taken to court. Runyan had in his possession when arrested $14,410.

Of the balance he said he had about $18,000 in speculation in the stock market. He disappeared from the office of the Windsor Trust Company Wednesday; that he had given $5 to Mrs. Carter and that he had

AT 65 TO TAKE FAIR BRIDE OF 20 YEARS

Boys will be boys and James C. Litchwood, although gray-headed and lacking but five years of being at the three score and ten, of life, will take a twenty-year-old bride. The County Clerk's office shortly before noon today and asked Deputy County Clerk W. M. Browning for a marriage license. The name of Isabelle H. Turner, twenty years old, was first filled out on the application. The clerk was dumbfounded when he asked the applicant his age and was told to put down sixty-five years.

Litchwood gave the place of residence for himself and wife as San Francisco. She did not accompany him on his errand for the marriage certificate.

In leaving the County Clerk's office, the groom-to-be offered a newspaper reporter a tip of $5 if he would withhold the name of himself and bride from the marriage license record of his paper.

feller. "I do not state this definitely, your honor."

"You think, then, that it is about $100,000,000?"

"That is my idea."

Mr. Rockefeller spoke very deliberately, invariably looking toward his attorneys before answering Judge Landis' questions, but listening closely to the judge as the latter, leaning toward the oil magnate, slowly enunciated his questions.

"Generally speaking," resumed Judge Landis, after a moment's hesitation, "what is the business of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey?"

"The production of oil," succinctly replied Mr. Rockefeller, and the crowd smiled.

Then Mr. Miller again objected to this line of questioning. Judge Landis listened to him, overruled the objection, and Mr. Rockefeller resumed his answer.

Been Out of Business for Twelve Years

"YOUR HONOR," SAID HE, LEANING TOWARD JUDGE LANDIS. "I HAVE BEEN SO LONG OUT OF BUSINESS THAT I COULD NOT WELL ANSWER THAT QUESTION. IT IS A DOZEN YEARS SINCE I HAVE BEEN ACTIVELY RELATED WITH ITS AFFAIRS. IT IS EIGHT OR TEN YEARS, YOUR HONOR, SINCE I HAVE EVEN BEEN IN THE OFFICE AT ALL."

"WELL, WHAT IS YOUR GENERAL IMPRESSION OF WHAT THE BUSINESS OF THE STANDARD OIL COMPANY IS?"

"THEY HAVE REFINERIES TO REFINO OIL. THIS IS AS NEAR AS I CAN SAY WITHOUT A STUDY OF THE CHARTER."

Again came the objections from Mr. Miller, Mr. Rosenthal joining. Again Judge Landis overruled the objections and proceeded with his questioning.

"Does the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey own any stock in the Standard Oil?"

"Object," came instantly from Mr. Miller. He offered lengthy objections to the questions of indirect ownership, in the course of which he said the government "has a purpose in this investigation."

"What do you mean by 'a purpose'?" asked the court.

"I have seen such statements in the papers."

Government Has No Part in the Action

"I will say for the information of counsel," replied the judge, "that the government has no part in this particular inquiry. It is pertinent for the court to prosecute this investigation to obtain knowledge of the wealth of this corporation."

"HAVE YOU ANY IMPRESSION, MR. ROCKEFELLER, THAT THE STANDARD OIL COMPANY OF NEW JERSEY IS INTERESTED IN OTHER REFINERIES THAN THIS ONE YOU HAVE MENTIONED?"

"I ONLY KNOW OF THE OPERATION OF REFINERIES IN NEW JERSEY OWNED BY THE STANDARD OIL COMPANY OF NEW JERSEY."

"Do you know of its control of other companies?"

"I do not know. It may be so."

In reply to further questioning, the witness explained that he could not say that the company had any other business than the refining of oil.

"You are rather technical," he concluded.

Dividends Were Approximately 40 Per Cent

"What were the dividends of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey in 1905?"

"I cannot say, but approximately 40 per cent."

This concluded the questions of Judge Landis, and District Attorney Sims asked if the witness was familiar with the circumstances surrounding the formation of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

"I don't think I care for that," said Judge Landis.

"What officers of the Standard Oil Company will be able to give me the earnings of the Standard Oil Company during 1904 and 1905?"

"I think possibly Mr. Archbold or Mr. Pratt."

"That is all for the present," said the court.

Mr. Rockefeller gazed around in an absent-minded way and was then told by a bailiff that he was through for the present.

ROCKEFELLER PERSECUTED, DECLARES HIS DAUGHTER

CHICAGO, July 6.—Mrs. Harold F. McCormick, daughter of John D. Rockefeller, yesterday discussed her father's visit to Chicago.

"My father is a much-persecuted man," said Mrs. McCormick. "It seems the more remarkable, inasmuch as he is not an enemy to anybody in the world. He is one of the most generous-hearted men in this whole world. He lives in the clouds with his God, rather than with worldly things. It is his greatest pleasure to appreciate newspapermen."

"The newspapermen who follow the Rockefeller family so much do not annoy us that would be a wrong impression. My father thinks highly of the men who make the newspapers, and numbers many of them among his friends. He likes to talk to them. He has played golf with them."

"The distasteful feature of the publicity is its dealing with personal things—family matters. I appreciate the fact that the public takes a great interest in my father. I think possibly the public has a right to know the things that it asks to know about him. He enjoys conversation and likes to have an audience."

"POSSIBLY WILL TALK." "Will your father give out an interview on general topics?" asked the interviewer.

Mrs. McCormick's answer was direct. "About the last thing, just before he is ready to leave, it seems quite possible to me that he will talk to the newspapermen if he is not too tired," she said. "But just now his having accepted servance, will render it necessary for him to concentrate his mind on business affairs. He is tired and is facing questioning on the witness stand. He will need rest."

"MAY GO TO CHURCH." "Will Mr. Rockefeller attend church if he remains in Chicago over Sunday?"

"It is one of his most strictly observed customs always to attend church. I have little doubt but that he will attend a Baptist church—if he can find one," concluded Mrs. McCormick.

There is also a possibility that Mr. Rockefeller may want to go to the country—possibly to Lake Forest. His daughter and son-in-law will make every effort to make his stay here as pleasant as possible.

feller's appearance, attaches of the Federal building anticipated that a big crowd would seek admittance to the courtroom. There are accommodations in the courtroom for 400, including all lawyers interested in the case.

Marshal Hoy had men scattered throughout the building, while government secret service agents were also stationed about so as to provide against any possible attempt to injure Mr. Rockefeller.

The final acceptance by Mr. Rockefeller of the subpoena issued for him by Judge Landis and his agreement to appear in court today marks the culmination of an exciting series of events in Standard Oil litigation and the final chapter of a spectacular search for the oil magnate.

Did Not Anticipate His Appearance.

When the United States government last August secured "the indictment of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana for having accepted rebates from the Chicago and Alton Railroad Company, neither the United States District Attorney nor attorneys representing Standard Oil interests anticipated that Mr. Rockefeller would ever be called to the witness stand.

After a hard-fought legal battle before a jury in Judge Landis' court, a verdict was returned finding the oil company guilty of violating the anti-rebate laws, and it was then incumbent upon the judge to assess a fine against the corporation, it being within his discretion to place the penalty as high as $28,000,000.

Judge Landis, after reading over the entire testimony, covering thousands of typewritten pages, concluded he could reach no satisfactory decision as to the amount of the fine unless he knew positively how large were the resources of the defendant company and whether it is owned by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. Judge Landis found there was no alternative but to call the officers of both concerns.

Judge Landis Can Fix the Fine.

Judge Landis is empowered to fix the fine at any sum between $1000 and $20,000 for each count, of which there were 1462 in the indictment.

Thus the maximum fine is $29,240,000, but as the capital stock of the Indiana company is but $1,000,000, the Supreme Court might deem the maximum fine as falling in the class of cruel and unusual punishment prohibited by the Constitution. If it is shown, however, that the Indiana company is merely a subsidiary to the New Jersey concern, with a capital of $100,000,000, no such appeal could be made.

COURT ROOM CROWDED.

An hour before the usual time of opening court a crowd of people was gathered in the hall way outside the court room, packing the narrow hall way to the point of suffocation. A detail of deputy marshals and police officers were placed along the hall and before the doorway of the court room.

The police and deputy marshals time and again were compelled to use strenuous measures to hold the crowd in check. The insistence of the would-be spectators was so great, however, that the police were nearly swept from their feet by the constant surging and pressure. The jam around the door when it was opened at 9:40 was terrific. The majority of spectators were in and seated when Mr. Rockefeller made his appearance at the end of the hall attended by a few friends and his counsel. A passageway was opened for him by the police and he walked slowly down the hall toward the court room, the crowd closing in behind him, eager to catch a glimpse of the so-called richest man in the world.

BILLIONAIRE USHERED IN.

Mr. Rockefeller was shown to a seat to the left of the judge's desk. His presence in the court room was almost unnoticed by the spectators until he was well up the side aisle. Then a buzz and a rustling movement, as each one tried to get a glimpse of the oil magnate. There was no demonstration, however. Mr. Rockefeller looked curiously around him for a moment as he settled in his seat and then commenced a whispered conversation with one of his attorneys.

"ARE YOU COMFORTABLE HERE, MR. ROCKEFELLER?" ASKED MARSHAL HOY.

"PERFECTLY, THANK YOU," ANSWERED THE OIL MAGNATE.

William Rockefeller, who had been sitting in the rear of the party, came forward for a moment later, when beckoned to by his brother, and took a seat at the latter's side. They conversed a moment, then quietly turned to watch the proceedings that preceded the calling of the Standard Oil case.

The oppressive heat of the court room made the crowd uneasy, but it quieted when Judge Landis threatened to have the courtroom cleared. William Rockefeller wielded his soft felt hat as a fan as the clerk droned through the call of some minor cases and attorneys for some minor criminals pleaded briefly for leniency for their clients, but John D. Rockefeller, apparently suffering no inconvenience, listened and watched Judge Landis closely, leaning forward the better to hear as the judge pronounced his sentence on a prisoner convicted of improper use of the mails.

CROWD BECAME MOB.

Immediately after the entrance of Rockefeller to the courtroom pandemonium broke loose in the hall-way. The crowd pushed at the policemen and the policemen, gasping and perspiring, shoved them back in desperate fashion. From struggling with the police, two members of the crowd soon turned upon each other, and a few spontaneous punching machines enlivened the already strenuous proceedings in the hall. So serious did the situation become that United States Marshal Hoy was compelled to telephone to police headquarters for additional help. The parallel of the situation never before was witnessed in or about a federal court building in Chicago. Inside the courtroom the jam was nearly as bad as in the hall outside. The walls were lined with spectators. Others filled the window seats, jammed the doorways, sat upon chairs in couples and even squatted on the floor.

CASE CALLED EARLY.

The Standard Oil case was called at 10:27 by Judge Landis. District Attorney Sims briefly stated the facts in the case as previously outlined. Attorney John S. Miller, for the Standard Oil Company, then announced that Mr. Rockefeller and other witnesses summoned by the court, were present and prepared to answer the questions of the court. Mr. Miller then entered a motion in arrest of judgment, which Judge Landis, shortly, overruled.

Fred A. Wann, former general freight agent of the Chicago and Alton railroad during the time covered by the indictment was the first witness called. He was asked by Judge Landis if he had given any instructions that the rate on oil between Chicago and East St. Louis should apply via Whiteing, Ind. He declared that he had no personal recollection of such instructions. The judge asked several additional questions, all of which were objected to by Miller, who was promptly overruled.

FELTON TESTIFIES.

H. E. Felton, president of the Union Tank Line was then called. Judge Landis asked if he knew anything of the payment of money by the Union Tank Line to the Alton during the time covered by the indictment.

"We paid three-quarters of a cent a mile on loaded and empty cars," said Mr. Felton.

"Are you sure you paid it on empty cars?" asked the judge.

"That is my best recollection."

"Do you know whether or not the stock of the Union tank line is owned by any other company?"

"The major part of its stock is owned by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey."

"Do you know what the outstanding stock of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey is?"

"No, sir."

Mr. Rockefeller was then called to the stand.

SECRETARY PRATT TESTIFIES.

C. M. Pratt, secretary of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, was called after Mr. Rockefeller left the

OIL MAGNATE FROWNS AND SMILES BEFORE CAMERAS

CHICAGO, July 6.—John D. Rockefeller, the master of the Standard Oil and captain-general over millions and the man who put the staffs of the United States Attorney's office in two States into the field in an endeavor to serve him with a subpoena, stood before a half dozen newspaper photographers in front of the Standard Oil offices in Chicago and took orders from the artists as if he were a paid model.

So astonished were the newspaper men by this sudden and completely unexpected change of attitude toward them by the oil magnate that they fumbled at their work and were so slow that Rockefeller finally remarked:

"You're much too slow." Then he took a position in the bright morning sunlight.

"Is this what you want?" he asked.

stand. He was questioned regarding the amount of dividends paid by the company and was then asked if the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey owned the stock of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. He said it did.

"How much of it?"

"A large proportion of it."

"Is the stock of the Union Tank Line Company owned by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey?"

"In large measure, yes, sir."

"Do you recall how large an amount?"

"I cannot say exactly."

This concluded the testimony of Mr. Pratt.

The next witness was E. M. Stanton of the car department of the Chicago & Alton.

"Can you tell me what moneys were paid by the Standard Oil Company and the Chicago & Alton Line Company to the Chicago & Alton?"

"Without protest to his seat," Mr. Stanton, replying to the question of Judge Landis, said he could not give the information. The attorneys on both sides then entered into a long discussion regarding rates and tariffs.

When it was concluded Judge Landis asked of the attorneys for the defense:

"Do you gentlemen desire to introduce any evidence in this case?"

"Nothing," replied Mr. Rosenthal, attorney of counsel for the company.

"NO REBUTTAL EVIDENCE." "The court would suggest," said Judge Landis, "that the defense take every care to see that such evidence as may seem of importance to the defense should be submitted. I desire to extend every facility to the defense."

"The defense will take the suggestion under advisement," said Mr. Rosenthal, "and will inform the court later as to its intentions."

"By Monday morning," inquired the court.

"Yes, sir."

This ended the investigation and the judge promptly left the bench while the court room was being cleared.

PARTY LEAVES COURT.

Mr. Rockefeller, attended by his counsel, William Rockefeller, John D. Archbold and the other Standard Oil officers, then left the room, going through the chambers of Judge Landis.

No formal announcement was made that the inquiry was ended, but Judge Landis said immediately after the adjournment that the investigation was concluded so far as he was concerned and that the witnesses were discharged.

WOULD DIVORCE HUSBAND WHO TOOK HER FROM JAIL

Spouse Files Counter Charges, Accusing Wife of Sensational Indiscretions in Own House.

After thirty years of married life, during which time the husband claims he obtained a pardon for his wife from a three years' term in a Massachusetts penitentiary, a final decree of divorce has severed the marital relations of Inez and Robert O'Rourke. The decree was granted by Judge Ogden this morning to Mrs. O'Rourke on the ground of extremely cruelty.

The O'Roukes were married in Penbrook, Maine, June 8, 1878, and have a son, Eugene, about 19 years old. Mrs. O'Rourke claimed that during the past twenty years her husband was a drunkard and used her with violence that made her life miserable. She said they came to California in 1885 and lived in San Francisco until 1897, when they moved to Tesla in this county, near Livermore.

When in San Francisco, Mrs. O'Rourke says her spouse drove a brewery wagon and was in the habit of coming home saturated with his cargoes. At Tesla she says her husband drove into Livermore and became intoxicated, she being obliged to drive in and take him home in a buggy.

When Mrs. O'Rourke asked for money to buy provisions for the family, she says O'Rourke gave her fifty cents and told her that was enough to support all the hoboes he cared to buy food for. He claimed the men stopping at the house were respectable and he refused to provide food for them. She says her husband accused her of infidelity.

When O'Rourke responded with a cross complaint and answered to the divorce, he said he took his wife out of a kitchen in Maine and married her when she was a common cook. He likewise supported her 4-year-old daughter, Lela. He says she went to Boston in 1880 and there married a man named Buck. She was tried, convicted and sentenced to three years for bigamy. O'Rourke worked continuously and finally obtained a parole from Governor H. Butler, of Massachusetts, on the terms that he would take her away. He then journeyed to San Francisco. He says she was untrue to him in the city when he drove an express wagon. O'Rourke says John Dallos called at the house in the city when he was away from home and that all the other members of the household were excluded while Dallos made love.

When O'Rourke labored in the coal mines at Tesla, he says his better half was the host of many men folks who came along the road near their ranch. Among the men he accused of paying attentions to his wife were Jack Murphy, whom he says he caught in the act of kissing on his wife's lower lip at midnight; Antonio Jason, the Irish man, whom he claims his wife hugged and kissed and told him she loved him; Ben Braddock, William Oakes, both called at the house; William Bridges, Truman Copeland and Harry Bowen he accused of taking his wife away from home on a little jaunt to the city. Mrs. O'Rourke had a separate postoffice box at Livermore, where her mail was addressed. O'Rourke says his wife promised their boy a double barreled shotgun if he would keep still about the men callers.

"Don't spill a charitable social event like this with business matters," he said.

Come over to my house in Cleveland and play golf with me. That's an invitation. Be sure and come."

A final decree of divorce was granted Mrs. Margaret McKinnon yesterday from Charles H. McKinnon on the ground of desertion.

"Raise your hat," requested one of the camera men.

"LOOKS PLEASANT." Rockefeller did so, and smiled as the warm sun played its rays upon his shining pate.

The camera men bent over their boxes for an instant and then there was a simultaneous click. Then the picture men moved the Standard Oil man in under their lenses. They had him raise his cane, took him reading a folded newspaper and finally one of the men said: "Now, Mr. Rockefeller, kindly face the camera full front view. Won't you frown a bit?"

Rockefeller looked stern for the photographer.

"Well, boys," said Rockefeller, "you'll acknowledge that I'm not so bad as I'm painted, won't you?"

When the reporter attempted to secure interviews he held them off.

"Don't spill a charitable social event like this with business matters," he said.

Come over to my house in Cleveland and play golf with me. That's an invitation. Be sure and come."

she had taken $10,000 more, without his knowledge.

Mrs. Carter at first stoutly denied that she had any of the trust company's funds, admitting that Runyan gave her $5000 but asserting that she promptly returned it to him at his request. While on her way to court today, however, she said she had deposited all the money that Runyan gave her in a bank and that it would stay there if she could keep it there. She declared that she could have obtained possession of all the money Runyan had if she had tried hard enough.

WHY SHE BETRAYED HIM.

Concerning her betrayal of Runyan's hiding place, she said that she had felt sorry for Mrs. Runyan and debated with herself whether to notify Mrs. Runyan of her husband's whereabouts or to give him up to the police. She did the latter, she declared, because she learned that Mrs. Runyan was ill.

Although she said she had no hope of securing the reward for Runyan, she remarked that she could make use of the $7000 offered. As she, like Runyan, was under the charge of receiving stolen property and the police have yet to recover about $25,000 which Runyan declares was hidden, there is little chance of her securing the reward.

On arriving down town today Runyan and Mrs. Carter were taken first to police headquarters where the photographs of them were made for the use of the police department and they were measured and questioned for the police record.

Neither of them made any objection and Mrs. Carter went through the process smilingly, while Runyan was haggard and careworn. They were then taken to the Tombs police court to be arraigned.

Runyan was arraigned on a charge of grand larceny in the sum of $50,000. Mrs. Carter was charged with receiving stolen property. Both waived examination and were held for the grand jury. Runyan in $15,000 bail and Mrs. Carter in $10,000. Neither was able to give bail and they were taken to prison.

Just before she was arraigned in court, Mrs. Carter denied that she had placed any of the Trust Company's money in the bank to her credit and declared she did last night, that she received only $5000 from Runyan and that she promptly returned it when he demanded it.

"ONCE A FAD" but new the fashion, says a leading store, referring to quality in things to eat. If quality was a fad before the pure food act became a reality it is now a fact as well as a fashion. Facts are not always popular, but truth on the labels of your food supplies a new "rightly" and must "prevail." It won't go out of fashion either. MAN'S JUMP ENDS FATALLY

Portuguese Laborer Falls Head Downward From Car in Effort to Rescue Hat.

BERKELEY, July 6.—A Portuguese laborer, named L. Burrell, who lived in Richmond, fell from a San Pablo-avenue car at 6 o'clock last night, at the corner of Camella street and San Pablo avenue. Burrell struck the ground on his head, causing a fracture of the skull and the base of the brain. He died at 12:50 o'clock this morning.

Burrell was driving his automobile near the scene of the accident, and taking the unconscious man into the machine, hurried to Roosevelt Hospital. Burrell died without regaining consciousness, and as it was seen at once, on his arrival that he was fatally injured, no operation was performed.

Burrell was on northbound San Pablo avenue car No. 215, and when the car reached the corner of Camella street and San Pablo avenue his hat blew off. Without waiting for the car to stop, he jumped off. The momentary loss of his hat was too great for the man to retain his footing and he was thrown heavily to the ground, striking on his head. Burrell was a man about thirty years of age, unmarried, and had a brother living in Richmond.

The body was removed to the morgue of Jamieson & Niehaus, where an inquest will be held tomorrow afternoon.

Is the joy of the household, for without it no happiness can be complete. How sweet the picture of mother and babe, angels smile at and commend the thoughts and aspirations of the mother bending over the cradle. The ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass, however, is so full of danger and suffering that she looks forward to the hour when she shall feel the exquisite thrill of motherhood with indescribable dread and fear. Every woman should know that the danger, pain and horror of child-birth can be entirely avoided by the use of Mother's Friend, a scientific liniment for external use only, which toughens and renders pliable all the parts, and assists nature in its sublime work. By its aid thousands of women have passed this great crisis in perfect safety and without pain. Sold at $1.00 per bottle by drugists. Our book of prices and values to all women sent free. In their explorations on the mountain tops and in the valleys Professor and Mrs. Lemmon found many species of tree life that were unknown to naturalists. These they have grouped and given names to. Both Mr. and Mrs. Lemmon are intrepid mountaineers and in their journeys from one end of the continent to the other encountered many strange experiences. They were caught in a snowstorm on a mountain top they nearly succumbed to thirst and heat on the hot sands of the Arizona desert, and were sick with fever in the swamps of Southern Central Mexico.

PLUNGES FROM HIGH TRELLIS AT BROOKDALE TO SNATCH DROWNING BODY FROM SEEMING CERTAIN DEATH.

ALAMEDA, July 6.—Spencer Brush, the 17-year-old son of Rev. F. P. Brush, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, enacted the role of life-saver this week at Brookdale, when he plunged from a high trellis into a deep pool and rescued from drowning a little 9-year-old Brookdale girl, who had gotten beyond her depth, and would certainly have lost her life had it not been for the bravery and daring of young Brush.

When Brush struck the water the girl had gone down for the last time, but he made a deep dive, grasped her unconscious form and swam ashore. Strenuous and immediate treatment restored the girl to consciousness, and she is now none the worse for her experience.

Young Brush is a prominent High School boy, and a member of the Alameda High School Champion baseball team. He is a modest and unassuming fellow, and absolutely refuses to take special credit for his brave act.

POOLROOMS LOSE VISITORS

Crusade by Sausalito Sheriff Has Depressing Effect on Gambling Business.

SAUSALITO, July 6.—That the crusade against the local racing poolrooms is having a depressing effect on the gambling business, as there were less than a hundred visitors to the two poolrooms operated by Harvey & Daroux, the saloon men frankly admitted that the business they had enjoyed from the daily visits of a big crowd from San Francisco had dwindled to almost nothing. Wells, Fargo & Co.'s agent also was noticeably indignant as a result of the falling off in money which the poolroom managers were accustomed to receive daily.

Little outward activity was displayed today by District Attorney Boyd and Sheriff Taylor in their plans for furthering the prosecution of the gamblers, but it became known early in the day that Boyd was in San Francisco on a matter connected with a petition for a writ of injunction against Harvey & Daroux, which he will ask Judge Lennon to issue in a few days, on the ground that the gamblers are conducting their resorts in violation of the law. Sheriff Taylor says that the fight against the poolroom will be continued in a thoroughly vigorous way until Marin county is rid of them.

BATHING STUDENTS ARE STONED BY PICNICKERS

Absence of Raiment Arouses Ire of Woman and Companions, All of Whom Apply for Warrants.

REDWOOD CITY, July 6.—Declaring James T. O'Keefe, a wealthy resident of Menlo Park and attorney of this city, together with four male companions and a woman, threw stones and threatened to bring firearms to bear because he would not leave a swimming hole in the San Franciscoquito creek, when told his presence was undesirable to women picnickers, William G. Macdonald, a prominent fraternity man and senior in the law department of Stanford University, took legal steps yesterday to secure the arrest of the stone-throwers on several charges of felony. The absence of the District Attorney, J. J. Bullock, was all that prevented the attorney and his friends from being haled into court.

O'Keefe is preparing to file counter charges of indecent exposure if the students persist in their efforts to prosecute, he says. The stone-throwers are said to be well-known residents of Palo Alto, one of whom was accompanied by his wife.

The trouble began when Macdonald and his companion, a freshman student, appeared at the swimming hole in the San Franciscoquito creek. Macdonald and his friend dived into the water, which, according to them, were deserted at the time. They were without bathing suits and had just plunged into the water when hailed from the bank by five men. Among this number, they claim, O'Keefe was recognized. The men requested the students to leave the swimming place, as they said they were accompanied by women. To this the ladies are said to have answered in the negative and suggested that the women and the men leave the vicinity if their presence in the water was objectionable. The answer to this was a hail of stones from the picnickers. The boys remained in the water until the marksmen grew accurate, when a dash to shore was made. The students then decided to return the fire, in spite of their lack of apparel, when, to their consternation, they observed a woman was among the number on the bank. The student who was first to appear, accompanied by his two sons, appeared. To him the students related their tale and he immediately demanded of the stoning party that the swimmers be allowed to continue. One of the picnickers declared rifles would be used if necessary to enforce their demands. The move was blocked through the entreaty of the woman of the party and after shooting threats at each other the belligerents withdrew.

Coupled with the charge of assault with a deadly weapon, based on the size and velocity of the stones thrown, Macdonald states he has been advised to prosecute members of the party for violating the fish and game law, inasmuch as O'Keefe and friends were fishing, he claims, within fifty feet of the dam which is owned by a fish dealer. Shooting on the Stanford estate, trespassing on the same estate and threats to do bodily harm uttered by O'Keefe in the streets of Redwood City will also be charged.

The students applied for warrants yesterday afternoon before Justice James Hannon, but when the official had heard the case he referred him to the District Attorney, as the matter was for a felony charge. Macdonald promises to be on hand today to press his charge, and O'Keefe declares he will be present with counter testimony. It is also rumored the woman in the case will take the stand if necessary.

STATE PROPERTY VALUES INCREASED $200,000,000

Phenomenal Growth Is Attributed Mainly by State Equalization Board to Year's Low Tax Levy.

SACRAMENTO, July 6.—At a meeting of the State Board of Equalization yesterday it was disclosed there will be phenomenal increase in property values in the State returned for taxation this year. It is believed the increase will be $200,000,000.

A resolution offered by State Controller A. B. Nye calling on railroad companies to report gross earnings for the year ending June 30, 1907, was defeated. Commissioners Alex. Brown, J. McElvane, J. H. Scott and R. E. Collins voted against the resolution. Mr. Nye explained that the object of the resolution was to secure for the current year a larger revenue from a tax on railroads and stated that at present the railroad assessments are based on statements of the gross earnings more than twelve months old, while the assessments for the current year are based on reports gross earnings up to date. He pointed out that during the twelve months just ended the railroads' gross earnings in California have been far greater than during the twelve months preceding.

Chairman Brown of the board said: "The natural increase in the assessment rolls will be greater this year than for any year since 1890. I predict this wave of prosperity will not last and if the railroads earnings will afford an increased revenue, we will need it next year more than we do this year. Even so, the present increase in the State tax levy will be the lowest ever known for the first year of a new governor."

Another resolution offered by Controller Nye adopted. It requires railroad companies to make a statement of the capital stock and the bonded debt. Extensions of time were granted to assessors as follows: Alameda, Santa Mate, Santa Clara, Fresno, Placer, Contra Costa.

WITNESSES STATE W. J. LUTKEY Was Not Responsible for Accident.

W. J. Lutkey, driver of chemical engine number 1, whose ability as a reinsman in the difficult position which he fills has excited admiration and favorable comment on more than one occasion, on Thursday evening carried away the wheel of a buggy driven by John Fraxey, an employee of the telephone company, while the engine was crossing Twelfth and Webster streets at about 9:30 o'clock. Bystanders who saw the accident declare that it was unavoidable.

At the time it occurred the parade had just crossed Webster street on Twelfth and vehicles were lined up on either side of Webster street, leaving a narrow passageway for the engine. Lutkey rang his bell as he approached the corner but the passing parade apparently prevented the occupants from hearing him. Near the corner of Twelfth street the car tracks stand several inches above the street, and the engine was forced over a wheel and damaging the buggy considerably. Lutkey's friends say that he was in no way responsible for the accident.

WILL PUBLISH BOOK ON INDIAN FOLKLORE

BERKELEY, July 6.—Professor A. L. Kroeber of the department of anthropology of the University has announced that he will publish a book on the tribal relations of the Indians of this State.

In the searches which are being carried out by the University scientists, the tribal languages, dialects and vocabularies, when compared, have aided much in reaching the conclusions sought after by the scientific world. Professor Kroeber is now endeavoring to trace the origin of the tribes by their myths. Through their myths of creation, the origin of death, and the like, common to many of the tribes, he has learned much of the first American.

UNIVERSITY INSTALLS NEW PHONE SYSTEM

BERKELEY, July 6.—The University of California is installing a new telephone system for its private exchange. The new switchboard which is of the newest pattern, will notify the operator that a call is wanted by turning on a light instead of ringing a bell and dropping a number. When the party is through with the line the light will go out itself, whereas in the old system the operator had to pull up the number which had been dropped.

Besides saving time for the operator the switchboard will provide for a number of new lines. Under the old system the exchange consisted of forty-eight lines, to the various offices but it has been found necessary to put in a number of other phones and this made a larger switchboard necessary.

MAY DIE FROM CIGARETTE FIRE

Santa Rosa Woman Is Lying at Point of Death From Awful Burns

SANTA ROSA, July 6.—Mrs. Amelia Shengal has come to the details of a young Jesse Enos, encounter with a mob of Chinese coolies while he and a shipmate were inland. Enos and his companion were riding back to Nanking from a trip inland. They were blue jackets on the U. S. S. Wilmington and had been on shore leave to visit the famous tombs of the Mings.

It was late and Enos was racing back, his horse being considerably ahead of his shipmate's animal. Accidentally he ran over a coolie and severely injured him. Immediately a mob of several hundred coolies surrounded Enos and his companion, both having dismounted.

The two sailors were hustled along until a policeman took charge of them. The minion offered no protection from the mob, which was armed with bamboo clubs. After the young seamen had arranged affairs with the police officer they started to depart, but the crowd had become large and threatening. Enos thus described the situation:

"When we started to leave they caught hold of our clothing and held us. As it was getting late and our liberty had almost expired, we unsung our canteens, which were half full of water, and our only weapons, and faced the crowd, which had increased to 400 or 500, and walked backward, striking out with the canteens, which we held by the straps. This enraged them so they started to hit us with clubs and, of course, we saw that we had to do some damage, as the police would not protect us. By this time four or five coolies were hurt very badly by us and we also had a few scratches and bruises from clubs. In making a swing with his canteen my friend hit a woman, cut her head open and she fell. Back we started for the police station, having a pretty hard time to get there. Word was sent to the captain and he sent a policeman to the American consul to release us. At 10 p. m. we went to the American consul and told our story and were sent back to the ship. The woman was sent to the hospital so her relatives could not kill her and claim a large sum of money, and we received a lecture from the captain and that ended the visit to the Ming tombs."

FIGHT TO SAVE 20,000 ACRES

Fire Threatens Destruction of Grain Fields Not Yet Under Water.

BAKERSFIELD, July 6.—The waters of Buena Vista lake are still pouring through the great gap in the south end of the broken levee and the flood is increased. A great army of men and horses are at work throwing up an embankment which is hoped will save 20,000 acres of cultivated land from inundation.

There are 200 men and 400 horses engaged in the work, and these numbers are being added to as fast as more men and teams can be procured. About 10,000 acres are under water. Added to the flood damage already done to the property of Miller & Lux and the fires in the grain fields, there is a great grass fire raging in the feed lands of the Tumbler country. A threatening grass fire also is burning on the "Red" ranch, near the city of Bakersfield. A large band of fire fighters are making no headway in extinguishing the flames.

The farmers in the Bear Valley, Brito valley, Cummings valley and the Tehachapi country will be threatened unless the fire fighters soon meet with some success.

FIRE DESTROYS WINE AND VALUABLE WINERY

SANTA ROSA, July 6.—Several thousand gallons of dry wine were destroyed by a fire which consumed Frank Cassani's winery at the entrance to Rincon valley, on the Sonoma road, Thursday night. The fire was discovered at midnight and the fire department was called. The fire was caused by a gas leak which gave the alarm to Cassani and his family. The structure was built of stone, and the building was uninsured. The contents were packed by a policy. All the cooperage and wine were destroyed, and the loss will be heavy. The fire is believed to have been caused by a gas leak discharged by children in a patriotic observance of the Fourth. Cassani is one of the prominent winemakers of this section.

LIVERMORE YOUTH FIGHTS MAD MOB ON CHINESE SOIL

With Companion Blue Jacket Attacked by 500 Yellow Natives While Returning From Tombs of Mings.

LIVERMORE, July 6.—From Shanghai has come the details of a young Jesse Enos, encounter with a mob of Chinese coolies while he and a shipmate were inland. THREATEN TO DRIVE ALL JAPANESE FROM VALLEJO

Oriental Cook Smashes Catsup Bottle on Marine's Head for Criticising Food and Riot Follows.

VALLEJO, July 6.—Serious trouble is looked for between the residents of this city and the members of the Japanese colony as the result of a fight between a marine and a Japanese cook in a restaurant on the morning of the Fourth of July. The cook, T. Kurita, attacked the marine, administering a severe beating and was locked up in jail, where he was set upon by another marine and given an unmerciful drubbing.

The Japanese of the town claim that their countryman has been unjustly treated and threaten to call the attention of the Japanese consul in San Francisco. The marines and their sympathizers make the boast that they will run every Jap out of town unless they behave themselves.

The trouble started when the marine entered the restaurant and ordered a meal. He found fault with the way it was served, and the cook, who overheard the remarks, said he would throw the head with a bottle of catsup. The red liquid ran down the marine's face, blinding him and rendering him unfit for a pugilistic encounter.

Attracted by the noise of the scuffle, in the meantime several bystanders entered the restaurant. During the fight that ensued windows were broken and dishes were smashed. The timely arrival of the police prevented a riot.

The cook, who was suffering from too much sake and other beverages, was locked up on a charge of drunkenness and battery.

Here his troubles began in earnest. He was quickly seized by a police officer and taken to the jail. A friend of the man who was beaten in the restaurant, Phaffert, who is a muscular young fellow, was making things lively for the Japanese when the jailers arrived.

When the members of the Japanese colony learned what happened they immediately threatened to bring the matter to the attention of the Japanese consul at San Francisco unless their countryman was released immediately.

The marines and their friends are on the warpath. They declare that every Japanese in Vallejo must go unless they consent to behave themselves and cease talking about the battered cook.

SWIFT AUTO WRECKS BUGGY

Two Women Caught In Crash With Serious Results to Arms, Scalps and Ribs

LARKSPUR, July 6.—Mrs. Kenny and Mrs. Pocher, prominent women of Larkspur, were injured in a collision between a buggy in which they were riding and an automobile driven by Mr. Kunze, a well-known capitalist of Corte Madera, yesterday.

The women were driving a spirited horse, when the automobile approached at a rapid rate from the direction of Corte Madera. As the machine was about to pass, the horse shied and plunged in front of it. The women were thrown out, the buggy was demolished, and the horse, after kicking himself loose, ran up the road.

Mrs. Kenny sustained a severe wound of the scalp, contusions of the head and body and a sprained elbow. One of Mrs. Pocher's arms was broken and she may have received internal injuries.

The first lecture will have for its subject "Cathode Rays, X-Rays and Ions," and will be given on Wednesday evening, July 10, at 8 p. m., in room 13, South Hall. The second will be on "Radiation and Its Transformation," and will be given in room 13, South Hall, on Friday evening, July 12, at 8 o'clock. Professor Lewis' lectures will be illustrated by a number of interesting experiments performed on the lecture table.

Arrangements have also been made with Professor James H. Hyslop of Columbia University, New York, to give two lectures on July 31 and August 2, in room 13, South Hall. The first, "Science and the Future Life," and the second will have for its subject, "Phyctic Research and Politics." Professor Hyslop is noted for his original work along psychological lines and is recognized as an authority on that subject.

SPARKS SET FIRE TO GRAIN FIELDS

SAN LUIS OBISPO, July 6.—Sparks from a Southern Pacific train started a fire at Serrano station on the Cuesta grade, six miles north of here. The fire, in a short time gained great headway, burning hay and grain fields over a large area extending to the outskirts of town to the California Polytechnic school grounds. Professors and students fought heroically for hours to save the buildings, but were at last forced at midnight to ask for assistance. It was 3 o'clock yesterday morning before the buildings were out of danger. The fire in the meantime burned over the Santa Lucia hills, destroying farm houses and extending to the National forest reserve, where it was finally controlled.

The Pacific Naval Demonstration.

The Government never did a more wise and politic thing than to order the main division of the navy around the Horn for a practice cruise in the Pacific Ocean. This cruise will practically demonstrate the necessity for an early completion of the Panama canal. It will give the people of the Pacific Coast an ocular proof of the power and magnitude of our navy, and an assurance of the ability of the Government to afford them ample protection. Such an imposing display of military power cannot fail to have an impressive effect in the Orient, where the military puissance of Japan, so signally demonstrated in the war with Russia, is beginning to have an overshadowing influence.

Secretary Metcalf's statement that the appearance in the Pacific Ocean of America's greatest fleet will have no military significance is true in the sense that it will not be a hostile demonstration against any other power or indication of a menacing attitude in our diplomatic relations with other nations having interests in the Pacific. Mr. Metcalf means that our intent is entirely peaceful and devoid of desire to give offense. Nevertheless the appearance of so formidable a fleet in these waters will carry an obvious significance that none can fail to observe. It will be evidence of an unmistakable character that the Pacific Coast is under the watchful guardianship of the Government at Washington, which is showing its mighty sea power off these shores as a guaranty of their future security. There is deep significance in this for the inhabitants of the Pacific States.

That it is merely preparatory to establishing a strong naval division to be permanently stationed on the Pacific Coast may be taken for granted. Such a division can afford the Asiatic squadron, having Manila bay for its base, prompt and vigorous reinforcement in case any necessity should arise. It will throw a powerful protecting arm around Hawaii and the Philippines.

A fleet of eighteen great battleships will afford a spectacular exhibition highly interesting. This array of line fighters, with the auxiliary squadron of cruisers, will have an effective strength far exceeding the combined Japanese and Russian fleets that met in the straits of Fuchima. It could easily demolish them both. This potent fact will convey an impressive lesson to the statesmen of the Orient. It will fill the people of the Pacific Coast with pride and a more poignant sense of the dignity and power of this great nation. Our splendid naval armament will convey no hint of hostility to our neighbors across the western sea, but when they see it mobilized for action they will be better able to appreciate the preferability of being on friendly terms with us.

Local pride in the appearance, sailing the American flag, of the greatest fleet ever assembled in Pacific waters will not be diminished by the fact that the Secretary of the Navy is a Californian and that he will grace in person the maneuvers in San Francisco bay. No doubt Secretary Metcalf's voice was potential in having this imposing naval demonstration made on the Pacific Coast.

Mr. Heney announces his intention of sending General Harrison Gray Otis of the Los Angeles Times to the penitentiary, but he leaves the public in doubt as to the offense for which the Los Angeles editor is to be convicted. Whether it is reference to Mr. Heney's record as a gunfighter in Arizona, hiding behind a mule in the Philippines or denouncing the labor unions is left to conjecture. Mr. Heney's confidence in his ability to send to prison anybody who offends him appears to be unbounded, and he seems to regard an expression of this confidence as a complete answer to all criticisms of himself. A lot of scaly politicians south of Tehachapi will lend their prayers not only that General Otis be convicted, but that he be transported far beyond the northern sea. But why should Mr. Heney limit his chase of military heroes to General Otis? Why omit Funston? His references to San Francisco's Unwhipped Mob should be counted a capital crime. But perhaps Mr. Heney does not consider himself one of the mob, even if he is unwhipped.

It is estimated that the total registration in the Philippines will not exceed 54,000, or one vote to every 145 inhabitants. From this showing it is argued that the Filipinos care little for the ballot. More likely it is an evidence that they have no desire to participate in an objectionable form of government. Abstention from registration is a silent protest against American rule in the islands. The mass of Filipinos refuse to take part in a government set over them without their consent, which denies them of control over their domestic affairs. Failure to register does not prove that they do not want the ballot, but that they refuse to exercise a suffrage that means so little in the direction of their own affairs. By registering and voting, they would give an indorsement to the conditions prevailing in the archipelago.

Senator Dolliver should have known better than to have gone to Mississippi to discuss the race question with Ben Tillman. The topic is an inflammable one, and when Dolliver undertook to meet Tillman on his own ground and on the same level, he placed himself at a disadvantage. No possible good can be accomplished by discussing the race problem on the low plane of partisan and sectional politics, and debates, which merely inflame the passions instead of appealing to cool judgment, simply intensify prejudice and misunderstanding. The race issue is not to be settled by men of the Tillman and Dolliver type—professional politicians destitute of philosophic insight and a faculty for dispassionate judgment.

A Boston paper speaks of Mark Twain's visit to the King at Windsor as "a Yankee at the court of King Edward." Mark Twain is not a Yankee. He is from Missouri and had to be shown. New England lays claim to him because he made his home in Hartford and has become the biggest toad in the literary puddle. Likewise New England claims the literary genius of Edgar Allan Poe, while magnanimously allowing Virginia to retain the credit for his appetite for whisky.

Since he has been announced as a Presidential candidate, Senator Knox wishes it to be known that in him the Constitution has a friend. In his Yale speech he declared his opposition to constitutional amendment by executive order. At the White House this is taken to be a reflection on Secretary Root's law and the President's respect for the Constitution.

THIRD STRIKE—CAN HE HIT IT?

About Good Things to Eat.

The Southern newspapers are discussing with much enthusiasm "the ten best dishes to eat." Strange to say, none of the lists we have seen includes hog's jowl and turnip greens, an old-time Southern dish of great popularity in ante-bellum days. Nor is there any mention of baked ham and lye hominy, sweet potato custard, turnips boiled with fresh pork backbone or crab gumbo. All memory of the toothsome of puddle duck baked with sweet potatoes, the favorite dish of Senator Joe Brown of Georgia, seems to have died out, even in the Cracker State. Nothing is said either of wild duck stuffed with rice, and only one or two recall the virtues of baked spare ribs and green corn fritters. Chicken pie "with the liver on" does not appear to be as popular as it used to be, and only in the "Louisiana lowlands, low," does the palate water over the remembrance of chicken gumbo.

The degenerate South of today is blind to the merits of bar-bacued shoat eaten with wild crabapple jelly, smothered chicken, fried chitlings, calves' feet, and strawberry turnovers. Surely the Old South has passed away or we would hear more of soused pigs' feet and smoked sausage. Everybody eats green corn and turkey in season, but people everywhere don't know how to make dewberry pie and chicken gravy.

Out here in California we have so many good things to eat that one would die of hunger enumerating them. We beat Maryland on ducks and Louisiana on gumbo. Our pompano makes the Eastern article taste like carp. Shad from the Sacramento is better than shad taken from the Potomac, the Hudson or the Connecticut, and we cook striped bass in ten different ways, each one better than the other nine. We beat the world on sweet corn, asparagus, sweet peas and artichokes. We have to give the road a little on clams, lobsters and blue fish, but our shrimps, mussels, crabs, salmon, mountain trout, rock cod, smelt, fresh mackerel and tomcod are beyond compare. We cook things Bearnaise, Bordelaise or any old way, with garlic, red peppers, tomatoes and a taste that is cosmopolitan, catholic and highly developed. We have nothing to learn from Paris regarding frogs' legs, quail, pheasant, ragout and bisque soups, and the real poetry of a Virginia ham is never truly appreciated till it has been cooked within cannon-shot of the Golden Gate.

If the benighted Southern editors will come out here, we will undertake to make them forsake fried chicken for chop suey, and put aside green corn for ravioli. Even Bostonians have to come to California to appreciate the snap and variety of beans. Down South, where a dead hog is an object of epicurean worship, they have not yet educated their palates to the refined flavor of real olive oil or that the excellence of cheese is denoted by its rank and antiquity. However, we will pursue the odorous comparison no further. Besides, there can be no real comparison between California and any country that can boast of only ten best dishes.

Pointed Paragraphs

A small New York theater of modest fame and no financial pretensions displays this sign in several conspicuous places in the lobby: "Bald-headed ladies are not expected to take off their hats." A woman retaining her headgear has not been seen in the house since the sign went up.

Bishop Sanford Olmstead of Colorado at a dinner in Denver said, in referring to Sabbath-breaking: "I was talking to an Eastern clergyman the other day about his church attendance. 'I suppose,' I said, 'that in your district rain affects the attendance considerably.' He smiled faintly. 'Indeed, yes,' he said, 'I hardly have a vacant seat when it is too wet for golf or motoring.'"

"Strange to say, the theory that the increased number of tragedies lately is due to the moving picture machines is advanced by a Terre Haute doctor, not by a University of Chicago professor.

At the banquet given in New York to General Kuroki, the Japanese hero, Admiral Dewey was seated beside Viscount Aoki, the Japanese ambassador. The latter became so enthusiastic while cheering a speaker that he upset a glass of water over the admiral's coat. The diplomat was greatly perturbed because of the accident, but Admiral Dewey laughed it off, saying: "Do not be distressed, I beg of you. Of course I should have preferred salt water, but do not let the matter annoy you in the least."

D. E. Howatt, former superintendent of Forest Hill, John D. Rockefeller's Cleveland home, says that strangers are barred from the estate this summer because they became too bold last year. "Forest Hill will never be open to the public again," Mr. Howatt says. "Last year, when many strangers were admitted to the grounds, some of them abused the privilege by sneaking upon the veranda, and peering into the window of Mr. Rockefeller's dining-room and watching him eat. That enraged Mr. Rockefeller."

Twenty years ago a man's shirt cuffs were brought around in a circle and fastened with a huge cuff button that went through both sides of the cuff. If the cuffs were reasonably small the button had to be removed before the cuff could be slipped off. A man who worked in an office decided that the cuffs should slip over the hand freely. He invented the link cuff button. Nowadays, whether one wears detachable cuffs or the kind sewed off the sleeves, the links are almost universal. President Roosevelt is one of the few men in the country who sticks to round cuffs and old-fashioned cuff buttons in preference to the flat cuffs and links.

It is a cleanly, wholesome, healing, antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes, which has given rest and comfort to the tired and aching feet in all parts of the world. It cures while you walk.

WIFE KNOCKS TWO WOMEN DOWN IN SEIZING BABY

Wife Hides Near Estranged Husband's Apartments and Grabs Child Taken on Outing.

COUDERSPORT, Pa., July 6.—Following an estrangement with her husband, William Matheson, woodsman and evangelist, Mrs. Matheson came here from Hornell, N. Y., yesterday afternoon and took her two-year-old son, Bruce, after an exciting chase she succeeded in getting away.

The children were in charge of a family named Turner. Mrs. Matheson had come to town without her husband's knowledge and concealed herself near the Turner home. Her baby, Bruce, was being pushed along the sidewalk in a coach by a young girl. Mrs. Matheson rushed upon the girl, knocked her down and caught the baby in her arms. She ran across a vacant lot and into a hotel corridor, knocking down one of the women servants who tried to stop her. At that moment, evidently preconcerted, a middle-aged man with horse and top buggy, drove up to the hotel door.

Mrs. Matheson ran to the carriage and, thrusting the child beneath the lap robe, climbed in herself, and the next instant, under a lashing whip, the horse was flying down Main street. They drove toward Fort Allegheny, and although Mr. Matheson followed in that direction on a train half an hour later, they escaped.

Matheson was known throughout the Pennsylvania lumber regions as a "bad" man until five years ago, when, during a revival meeting, he became converted, and he is now an ordained minister. He says he will strain every point to get his child back. Mrs. Matheson's companion is unknown, though those at the hotel who were near the buggy declare he was disguised.

The picture at the top is from a photograph of Mrs. Nanaline Holt Inman, a beautiful widow of Atlanta, Ga., who it is said will become the bride of James B. Duke, the tobacco magnate. Below is a picture of Mrs. Mary Smith, Housekeeper of Mrs. Duke, who figured in the divorce suit, which freed him from his first wife. View of Duke's estate at Somerville, N. J. is also given.

TEARS MAY KEEP HIM

Never forget that man is a selfish animal. He will probably suggest dining at his club instead of in the kitchen. This must be combated with reproaches and, if necessary, tears.

If you cry, let the tears run down your cheeks. The striking effect obtained during the spring cleaning season would appeal to the most brutal criminal that ever drew breath.

Your husband is sure to complain that the bed in the spare room is damp. Seize this opportunity to remind him that, but for his disgusting selfishness, your sainted mother might have been sleeping in it throughout the winter.

You will not, of course, allow any meat to be brought into the house during this period. If your husband mentions "tinned stuff," breathe "Chicago!" at him and then kiss the youngest child with rare tenderness.

A clean house, between ourselves, looks very much the same as a dirty one. Directly your husband says, "After all,"—have hysterics.

EASTERN BACHELOR AIDS WOMAN DESPITE COURT

Lets His Housekeeper-Cousin Keep Fortune, Including Rare Coins, Brother Intended for Him.

PITTSBURG, July 6.—A decision handed down by Judge Miller in Orphans' Court reveals a wonderful story of self-sacrifice.

When David G. Wilson died in February, 1906, he left a will leaving his estate, valued at $250,000, to his brother, Robert K. Wilson, and also named the latter as executor. Attached to the will, however, was a letter, which the executor construed as a codicil, leaving the entire estate to their cousin, Miss Mary Baird.

For many years the brothers, both bachelors, had lived on a large and magnificent estate at Leedsdale, and Miss Baird was their housekeeper. Robert K. Wilson, without the slightest hesitation, turned over his brother's fortune, which included a rare collection of old coins, to Miss Baird.

The beneficiary, wishing an appraisal, took the coins to her nephew, D. Leet Oliver, who was killed in an automobile accident at New Haven, Conn., several days ago, and whose body was buried here recently.

The young man fixed a value, and the coins were then sold to Henry Chapman, a numismatist, of Philadelphia, for $8800. He sold them for $15,000, and Miss Baird sued for their recovery, claiming they had been procured by misrepresentation. This suit still is pending.

When the will of David G. Wilson reached Judge Miller a few days ago he noticed the peculiar codicil, and today handed down a decision to the effect that, instead of desiring that his entire estate go to Miss Baird, the deceased intended that she should receive $40,000. The fortune is ordered returned to Robert K. Wilson, under the original will.

The old man declares that, regardless of the decision of the court, he is willing to permit his cousin to retain the fortune which he turned over to her.

TACTLESS INTRODUCTIONS

In the desire to help in starting a conversation, when presenting people to each other, says "Harper's Bazaar," don't overdo the matter. Leave them as soon as possible. Let them choose their own topics and make their own discoveries. Each will find the other vastly more interesting under these circumstances. Especially introducing anybody of whom you happen to have a high opinion, don't preface the presentation with laudatory remarks. They will invariably silence the most willing talker. For instance, "This is my dear friend Nellie, the brightest girl in town." Of course "Nellie" is immediately stricken dumb. What can she say impromptu that will bear out this appalling characterization? Evidently mere commonplaces will not serve. Only a scintillation is in order, but her unusually ready tongue and fertile brain are paralyzed. A strong sense of humor will sometimes save the situation, but oftener a painful embarrassment is the result of the well-meant, but tactless, introduction.

AGED WOMAN HOLDS HEAD IN TUB UNTIL SHE DROWNS

Melancholia Over Suicide of Close Friend Causes Mrs. Christina Klinkner to End Her Own Life.

PITTSBURG, July 6.—Melancholy over the death of her friend, Mrs. Christina Klinkner, of Carnegie, who took her own life, Mrs. Elizabeth Stock, 70 years old, of Allegheny, committed suicide twelve hours later in a bathtub in her home. Her body was found by her old husband, who is presently being held by police.

The two women had been close friends for years and when Mrs. Stock learned of Mrs. Klinkner's suicide she became despondent. The old woman went into the cellar and there filled a tub with water. Kneeling beside the tub, Mrs. Stock immersed her head and, holding herself in this position, slowly drowned.

AMERICAN WOMAN BLEEDS MANY PROMINENT BRITONS

Promises of Swollen Profits in Syndicate Investments Lures Unsuspecting Scions of Wealthy Families.

LONDON, July 6.—A strange story of alleged fraud, involving large sums, was related in the West London Police Court yesterday. Mrs. Josephine Leslie, whose friends were said to be worth millions, was arrested Thursday at Newmarket, where she had been staying at the best hotel. Mrs. Leslie was taken into custody while out driving in a motor car, charged with defrauding members of well-known families by false pretenses, and was arraigned at the court mentioned and remanded.

Miss Annie Blount, the plaintiff, is a member of an influential Dublin family. Her counsel said Miss Blount met Mrs. Leslie at a friend's house. Mrs.

Leslie, Miss Blount added, represented that she was a friend of J. Pierpont Morgan, and produced a letter purporting to have been written by Morgan, advising her to invest in one of his syndicates and promising fabulous profits. Miss Blount later was a guest of Mrs. Leslie at a leading London hotel, and ultimately intrusted the latter with $42,500 to invest in the alleged Morgan syndicate.

Mrs. Leslie in return gave Miss Blount postdated checks for $125,000 and $10,000, which were supposed to represent the profits which would accrue to Miss Blount. When the first check was presented it was marked "account closed" and returned. Counsel added that other similar charges were pending against the defendant.

TWO YOUNG WOMEN DUPE 'KIND GENTLEMAN'

Adopt Clever Ruse in Central Park to Run Away From Finely-Clad Infant.

NEW YORK, July 6.—In swaddling clothes of silk, soft linens and fine cambrics, a month-old baby boy has been turned over to the police by John Rogers, 2052 Madison avenue, who explained as follows: About 7:30 o'clock he was walking through the East Drive of Central Park when he met two young women in gray tailor-made suits, pretty and attractive. They were accompanied by a boy of about five years in a Buster Brown suit and a red cap. One carried an infant.

"Maybe this gentleman would hold it for a minute," said the other girl, and then they explained that there was a little squirrel in the bushes that was injured.

"We tore up our handkerchiefs to bind up its leg," said the young woman. "But it didn't seem to do. If you would just hold the baby for a minute, he won't cry, and I could get a little piece of elastic"—and then the young woman blushed and said, petulantly: "Well, I don't care, I can't bear to think of the little thing suffering there. The brute that burnt it should be killed."

Mr. Rogers took the baby while the pair and the little boy went to fix up the squirrel with a piece of elastic that the young woman was to get from some place or other.

Mr. Rogers held the baby until 9:45. He sang to it and clucked to it, but finally he was glad to give it to the police.

The baby with the fine raiment was finally forwarded to Bellevue, while the police are hunting for the young woman.

Helps for Housekeepers.

The glass of pictures and mirrors may be well cleaned with dry whiting and a woolen cloth.

A well-beaten egg is a great addition to a tart made of dried apples, giving lightness and a good flavor to the dish.

After having washed lamp chimneys in soap and water, scald with clear water. They can be dried much more quickly, and will be perfectly clear.

To bake potatoes in from one-half to three-quarters of an hour, boil until thoroughly heated through before putting in the oven, which takes about five minutes.

A good starch gloss is made by adding a little spermaceti and about a teaspoonful of borax to each quart of water. These ingredients will give the starched articles a particularly fine gloss.

Milk tins should occasionally be scrubbed with a little salt, and afterward well rinsed and scalded. Insufficient washing of the utensils in which it is kept is the frequent cause of sour milk.

Make potatoes look white and floury by boiling in as little water as possible.

COSTLY GEMS DISAPPEAR FROM PUBLIC WASHROOMS

Placing Rings on Marble Slabs While Bathing Hands Means Probable Loss of One's Property.

PHILADELPHIA, July 6.—If you are a woman and go into the washroom of a restaurant or department store to wash your hands, don't take off your rings and lay them on the marble slab while you are discussing your latest bargain purchase with a friend. If you do you may find that someone else has annexed the rings, a thing that has happened frequently of late.

Mrs. A. Zalsler so left a ring for a few moments in the toilet room of a restaurant at Twelfth and Chestnut streets. It was a princess ring, set with three large diamonds and sixteen small ones, and was valued at about $800.

A woman who was in the apartment at the time was seen to leave hurriedly, slamming the door so hard behind her that it attracted attention. This woman is described as being rather large, wearing a plaid dress and a black hat trimmed with red ribbons. Mrs. Zalsler did not miss the ring until she was on a car homeward bound.

Three young women went into the washroom of a cafe at Ninth and Market streets Thursday afternoon. One of them laid an opal ring upon the washstand while she chatted with her friends. A fourth woman who was there disappeared, hurried to the corner and took a Ninth street car going north. She was described as a large woman, wearing a red-trimmed hat and with hair unmistakably of the peroxide brand.

The young woman whose ring evidently vanished with this woman has told the superintendent of the place that she has seen the unknown on the streets frequently, and that she means to keep a keen lookout for her, and if she sees her again to camp right upon her trail until she finds her abode.

ANTIQUITY OF DOLLS

It is difficult to trace the origin of dolls, but they were known 3500 years ago in Egypt. There is a large collection of Greek and Roman dolls in the British Museum, some of rags, others of bone, and prehistoric dolls are found in Peru. At the present day dolls are used all over the world, and those of cultured races have been evolved from very simple forms. In the Marshall Islands the husk of a coconut makes a good doll. In the Sandwich Islands a stone wrapped in a banana leaf serves the same purpose. In the south of India a rude resemblance to the human figure is obtained by a straight piece of cane with cross piece for limbs, and the same practice obtains in parts of South America. In Korea straw figures are used; in Australia dolls are carefully moulded of wax, and in many of the African dolls, though the face was not discernible, the tribe can be distinguished by the original style of hair dressing.

DETECTIVE BROTHER PUTS QUICK END TO ELOPEMENT

Real Joke Comes When Sleuth Gets Invitation to Mad Sister's Wedding One Month Distant.

PITTSBURG, July 6.—Detective son in Ohio when she was escorted back over the line unmarried.

The real joke came when Detective McDonough received an invitation to his sister's wedding to young Crogan, which will be celebrated on her next birthday.

"I will be 18 in less than four weeks and I'll marry Tom the moment I am 18, and you can't stop me," is the defiant reply of the girl at her big detective brother.

THE MEDDLER

OUT OF TOWN FOR THE FOURTH.

Fourth of July coming on Thursday as it did, added two days to the week-end parties, and there were few people who did not leave town or entertain visitors over the national holiday. Del Monte was the popular place and the roads were black with those who motored down for the holiday. Among the visitors were: Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Whitney (Pearl Landers), who spent the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. J. Parker Whitney, who are spending the summer at picturesque Del Monte. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wilson went to Del Monte with friends, leaving their two little sons at their Pacific avenue residence. Mrs. Wilson looks as well as ever again.

Dr. and Mrs. Russell Cool entertained a house party over the holiday. Among their guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Conlisk, Mrs. Joseph Austin, Mrs. Solly Walter, Barbour Lathrop and Richard M. Hotelling.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Meyerstein and Mr. and Mrs. Heynemann motored down to Del Monte for the holidays, stopping en route at San Jose.

Mrs. Isaac Requa, General Long and his little daughters are at Del Monte for a few days.

Mrs. A. N. Towne and Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Worden are at Del Monte for the month of July.

Miss Ella Morgan is the guest of Mrs. Low and Miss Flora Low at Del Monte. She has been at the popular hostelry practically all summer.

Miss Morgan is one of the best swimmers at Del Monte. Her sister, Mrs. Norris Davis, is also an excellent swimmer. Mr. and Mrs. Norris Davis and their two little daughters have taken a house at Burlingame for a year, but they are spending considerable time at Del Monte this summer. Mrs. C. P. Morgan has also been down for a good part of her time. Mrs. Morgan is devoted to bridge and always spends some time at the Hotel Rafael, where the bridge players congregate in force.

AT YOSEMITE VALLEY.

Among those who have recently visited Yosemite are the Misses Sydney Smith and Mrs. Philip Lelandale and Mr. Horace S. Severance. The Joseph B. Coryells, with their children, recently visited the valley, motoring all the way. Like all the other returning travelers, they report the valley waters more wonderful than ever this year, and the stages literally packed with people. Some intending visitors have been unable even to stay over night in the valley, owing to the congested condition of the one hotel. One of the most crying needs of the valley is a new and large hotel. Those who neglect to write or telephone ahead for hotel accommodations find themselves homeless and are obliged to leave the valley the same night, which is not only very fatiguing but a great disappointment as one wishes to see the valley from various viewpoints and also to allow its beauties to sink into the consciousness.

The Sierra Club is to visit the valley this year, and many of those who made the trip before will go with the club again.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MRS. MCENERY.

Sudden and shocking was the passing of Mrs. W. A. McEnery, who died shortly after midnight Sunday evening of an entirely unexpected attack of heart failure. Mrs. McEnery was a patroness of the novel fencing fandango which took place at Fort Mason Saturday night and of which Mrs. Funston and a number of other army and civilian ladies were patronesses. Mrs. McEnery was in her accustomed health and spirits on that evening and, as usual, looked very handsome. There was no warning of any sort—just her sudden demise.

Dr. and Mrs. McEnery came to San Francisco to make their home just after the earthquake. They had been married but a short time. Mrs. McEnery having been Mrs. Henrietta McLaughlin, a wealthy widow of Salt Lake and Denver. She was handsome and fascinating and had always been a great favorite in San Francisco society.

On coming to San Francisco Dr. and Mrs. McEnery and Dr. McEnery's sister, with Mrs. McEnery's young daughter, Isabel McLaughlin, took a house in a fashionable neighborhood, directly across the street from Mrs. Eleanor Martin, and here they entertained lavishly. They gave some large and perfect dinners and late last spring Mrs. McEnery gave one of the largest and handsomest bridge parties of the season. Mrs. McEnery had spent the previous winter in Paris and possessed some wonderful gowns which she wore exceedingly well. She was particularly popular in army and navy circles, her most intimate friend being Mrs. James C. Bull, wife of the naval commandant at Yerba Buena. With the Bulls, Dr. and Mrs. McEnery made a recent trip by motor through Sonoma County.

There were no funeral services in San Francisco. Dr. McEnery taking the body to Salt Lake, where the services were held at Mrs. McEnery's old home.

MOTOR CAR PARTIES.

Mr. and Mrs. Wickham Havens recently took a party to Del Monte and San Jose. Their friends occupied two machines and had a jolly time. There is a "penny dreadful" theater running in San Jose, which it is the fad for all the motor parties to visit. It is called, I believe, a "ten-twenty" show, and is as much fun as a barn-storming troupe.

LONG SLEEVES TO BE THE VOGUE.

The latest cry from Paris is the long sleeves for dressy blouses and shirt-waists. All the latest Paris blouses are coming out with an extra long cuff which fits over the hand and which is intended to be basted into the elbow sleeve. Another new wrinkle is that the shoes and stockings must match the belt and trimmings, not the gown itself. These are particularly pretty when you see green shoes, stockings, veil, belt, parasol and gloves with a white lingerie gown, for instance. Another fad which is not likely to be popular in the windy climate about the bay is the fad for wearing stockings to match the gown with tan shoes. For instance, with a green gown reseda hose are worn with tan shoes, but the effect is startling, rather than pretty.

GOING AWAY IN SUMMER.

Going away in the summer is one of the most commendable of American developments. Every family who can at all afford it plans a change of scene—of environment—and one returns to the old duties, to the old ways of living, with renewed interest in life. In the East all along the Hudson, in the Adirondacks, one meets camps, with tired people, resting after the strenuous work of the winter. But there is a greater charm in our own landscapes, for California is the State of wonderful scenery.

What is written of an Eastern summer is quite true of our own times. One reads:

"The days in the country bring rest to the man tired with the pressure of the winter's campaign, give his children new ideas of the country, without which as child has quite all he has a right to demand, and rest the wife and head of the family for her winter work of keeping the home and molding the family."

It isn't such a hard task to get away for the summer as it used to be. The railroads make getting away easy, and the family man who looks longingly towards the hills need no longer count the cost. Going away is now no more expensive than staying at home—save the car fare, and pleasant resorts are so near that this need not alarm the man with the small pocket-book in the least. Once there, the cost of living is reduced to a stated sum each week, and he'll be happy to find that in many cases it will all cost less than what the family could live for in their own home.

CALIFORNIANS ABROAD.

One is glad that this year Californians are among the interesting visitors abroad, and that news notes of them are of more than the ordinary degree of interest.

Professor Edward Bull Clapp, who has been appointed for the ensuing year professor of Greek at the American School of Classical Studies in Athens, is traveling during the summer in Europe. He has already visited many points of interest in Germany, and stopped at various cities on the Italian peninsula. He passed several pleasant days at Naples and on the Island of Capri at the entrance of the Bay of Naples, the island on which the Emperor Silius spent the last ten years of his life. Here he built twelve villas or palaces, the ruins of which are still visible.

Professor Clapp has made an interesting visit to Pompeii, and his last letter to friends here was dated in Rome.

HENRY BUTTERS SAILS FOR ENGLAND.

Henry Butters sailed for England last week and will join his family in their delightful little country home near London.

Mrs. Butters has taken the most charming country home near London. "Beach Lawn" is its attractive name, and it is quite the typical sweet little ivy-covered English country house. It has a warm welcome in it for all the friends of the family, many of whom come from London for luncheons, afternoon teas, dinners and bridge.

The Butters have been abroad so much that they have many English friends who make their life among them delightful.

Mr. Butters is one of the best whips in London, and it is a keen delight for him to drive one of the big through the crowded London streets, and down the country to some interesting place on the banks of the

There is always also much social entertainment for Mrs. O'Sullivan, who is a sister of Mrs. Thomas Magee Sr.

MRS. F. S. SAMUELS.

Thames. Mrs. Butters has always the box seat, enjoying the trip quite as much as Mr. Butters, and many parties of friends enjoy their delightful hospitality.

Mr. and Mrs. Butters and their daughters are planning to return to California in October, and their friends are hoping that they will be at Alta Vista for the winter.

They are such delightful entertainers that they are greatly missed when they are out of town in the social season.

PEOPLE WE KNOW IN PARIS.

Many Californians are spending the early summer months in Paris, among them Mrs. William Clift, Miss Jean Clift, and Mrs. Lee Cole-Burnham.

They arrived in time for what the Parisians call "La Grande Semaine," "the big week" of the year, when the grand prize, "Le Grand Prix," is run. Paris was crowded with guests from all over the world, and the crowds were wonderfully cosmopolitan and intensely interesting.

Miss Miriam Michelson is in Paris with a brother-in-law and sister from Texas, and they will probably remain some time.

Miss Frances Jolliffe is now in London, but she is going to Paris in the near future, planning to remain there a year.

MRS. GODDARD GOES TO EUROPE.

Mrs. Clarke Goddard and Miss Florence Goddard have gone to Europe for a summer trip, and they have rented their beautiful home at the head of Dwight Way to the Saltontalists of San Francisco. Miss Goddard is a recent graduate of Miss Head's school, and is now of the freshman class of the University of California.

WEDDING ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Interesting wedding announcements have been received by many families this week.

Mrs. Robert James Laws announces the marriage of her daughter, Allen Wilkey, to Mr. William Randolph Birt on Wednesday, the 26th of June, Auburn, California.

Mr. and Mrs. Birt have gone on a wedding journey, and when they return they are planning to make their home in Berkeley.

This is greatly to the joy of Mrs. Dan Belden, who will be pleased to have her sister's home so near her own.

MRS. ALEXANDER INJURED.

All the many friends of the Alexander family are greatly grieved over the accident which recently befell Mrs. S. T. Alexander. She received a bad fall on Broadway, which resulted in a fractured hip, and she has been very ill since it happened at the hospital. The accident was a very serious one, and friends of the family are hoping for Mrs. Alexander a speedy recovery from it.

IRISH PLAYER COMES HERE.

The White Star liner Oceanic arrived in New York last week, bringing to America among other distinguished passengers, Mr. Dennis O'Sullivan, actor and singer.

Mr. O'Sullivan comes directly to Te Liberty, where he is to appear in "Peggy Macree." He is scheduled also for six weeks here.

Dennis O'Sullivan always has a royal welcome in San Francisco, which was for so many years his home. He is a great favorite in the neighborhood where he was always known as "Denny" O'Sullivan.

MISS MASIE COYLE

Mr. O'Sullivan will sail for London on September 25 and later will return and open in New York on January 5.

AMUSE OUR POPULATION.

To amuse a population! That is the way to keep people in a city, so we are told. People will stay where they are amused, and so Oakland is developing its theaters and its restaurants in the most approved fashion.

In the midst of it all comes the question of music, in the leading restaurants. And one is amazed to hear that the New Yorkers do not care for good, good music.

In one of their own leading papers one reads: "Somehow, in the good old summer-time the New Yorker does not care to mix good music and cold drinks. The atrocious committee by restaurant orchestras seem to meet all musical requirements in the summer."

In Germany and Austria the best bands are to be heard every evening in the summer gardens, and people far less pretentious than ourselves enjoy music which is distinctly first class. In New York fortunes have been lost in trying to force summer concerts.

Classical and semi-popular music finds few listeners and little applause. The New Yorker is not like the German or the Austrian, who finds recreation with his family listening to serious music. Strangers want gaiety and excitement all the time.

And very few of the thousands of foreigners who have been reared at home in the best music seem to care about it here. At one time in their existence they could no more do without it than they could dispense with their daily bread and butter, but in America they change. They leave continental customs behind them.

All that is very different in our own city. Here one hears the best of music in our restaurants, and in our large parks the music of the band is perhaps its most attractive feature.

SOCIETY PERSONALS.

Senator George C. Perkins and Miss Fanny Perkins have been spending some interesting days at Witter Springs.

If the Duke of the Abruzzi comes to California as has been planned, no doubt Senator Perkins will entertain him at Palm Knoll, the Perkins home on Vernon Heights.

The Duke has been very much lionized in the social world of Washington, New York and Newport.

evening, and she is to be away a month. On her return she will join the family at Glen Ellen.

MR. AND MRS. LAYMANCE RETURN.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Layman and their daughters have returned from an interesting automobile trip through Mrs. John Smith and her children. Mrs. Layman senior leaves on Saturday for Howard Springs, where she will spend some weeks of the summer.

DR. AND MRS. MOFFITT AT TAHOE.

Doctor and Mrs. Herbert Moffitt and their children are spending the summer at Lake Tahoe, and among the recent guests at Tahoe Tavern has been Mr. James Moffitt.

MR. AND MRS. FOLGER GO SOUTH.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Folger and their children left on Monday for Santa Barbara, where they will spend some weeks.

Mrs. John Smith and her children have gone to Santa Barbara for their summer outing and will be gone during the month of July.

MRS. REQUA WAS AT DEL MONTE.

Mrs. Isaac Requa was recently a guest at Del Monte, where many of her friends are spending the summer.

Mrs. Requa and her little granddaughters left on Friday morning for Aetna Springs, where they will remain for some weeks.

MRS. GORRILL'S VACATION.

Mrs. Charles Gorrell, with her mother, Mrs. Hitchcock, and Ralph Gorrell are among those who will spend the Fourth of July holidays at Pacific Grove.

MR. AND MRS. MEAD GO NORTH.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Risdon Mead, formerly Ruth Sadler, have gone to Alaska on their wedding trip, and they will not return to Byron Springs until early in August.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tripler Hutchinson have gone to the Grand Canyon of the Colorado on an extended wedding trip. Mrs. Hutchinson was formerly Gertrude Allen, and her wedding was full of interest and romance, one of the most beautiful weddings Oakland has seen in many months.

SUMMERING IN ROSS VALLEY.

Many well-known people are spending the summer at Ross Valley, where they are enjoying quiet but interesting days. Miss Ruth Houghton went to Ross Valley early in the week, and she will spend some days there with friends.

MRS. H. K. BELDEN RETURNS.

Mrs. H. K. Belden and Miss Nadine Belden arrived last week from an extended stay in the East and Europe. They have visited many of the most interesting cities of Europe during their four years' stay abroad.

Mrs. Belden and her daughter Nadine are planning to make their permanent home on this coast, and they are at present the guests of the Dan Beldens at their East Oakland home.

GO NORTH ON WEDDING TRIP.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Corder, formerly Olive Bruning, went to Alaska for their wedding trip, and after some delightful weeks in northern seas, they have returned to Washington.

They are expected to return to Oakland and will establish their own home here.

MRS. MATTHEWS AT SPRINGS.

Mrs. Henry Matthews is at Slegter Springs where she is spending the month of July. Mrs. Matthews is hoping that she may have a visit this winter from her daughter, Mrs. Minnie Matthews Cryon.

The latter has a very beautiful home near Dublin, Ont., the sudden passing of Mr. Cryon has brought very sad days to the home. Mrs. Cryon is very wealthy and can afford to live where she chooses—and as there are seven children in the household, her friends are hoping that she may choose to bring them up in an American environment.

BERKELEY PEOPLE IN EUROPE.

Among Berkeley people who are in Europe this year are the Farringtons and George Senger.

The latter is the son of Professor and Mrs. Senger of Berkeley, and he has been traveling extensively in Europe. At present he is in Lieben with friends, and he is writing home the most charming letters from abroad.

The Farringtons are now in Paris and they are greatly missed in Berkeley. Professor and Mrs. Farrington in their brief stay in Berkeley learned to know many people worth while. Mrs. Farrington was very democratic, and she knew how to entertain in quite a wonderful way. People in college, circles were of course welcome, but Mrs. Farrington's guests by no means included just college people. The Berkeley professor's wife hitherto has been a bit narrow. She knew only a certain set. Mrs. Farrington knew that set of course—but it was not all of social life. She knew a great many other sets as well, and gave an example in social entertaining that might well be followed by others. Consequently Berkeley misses the Farringtons, who are to remain abroad a year, most of the time to be spent in Paris.

LONG-DISTANCE TRIP.

When it is a matter of a holiday, the true Californian never minds a long-distance trip. You will find him well represented in Europe, and on the other hand a trip to the Orient is often on the cards. A large party is planning to go to Tahiti this summer, to be present at the celebration there, which takes place each year, of the fall of the Bastille.

Among those going out on the Mariposa is Miss Pearl Judson, one of the very popular girls of the Berkeley social set.

MRS. MORRISON CHANGES PLANS.

Mrs. William H. Morrison has changed her plans for the summer and will not go to Carmel. Mrs. Morrison and Miss Louise Mahoney will go to Highland Springs this week, where they have taken a cottage and they are planning to be away a month.

Mrs. Montell Taylor is still at Highland Springs, and Miss Clarice Lohse will join her there in the near future.

AMERICANS AT WATERING PLACES.

There are crowds of Americans at all the Bohemian watering places. Congressman Julius Kahn and his family have been at Carlsbad, where Mr. Kahn has been taking the rest cure. They are now in Dresden and they are planning to spend some time in Germany, traveling slowly on the Rhine, and visiting the most historic cities of the far-famed "Fatherland."

WINNING FAME IN EUROPE.

Mrs. Glascoe of San Francisco is winning great fame in Europe as a mountain climber. She recently climbed the Dufour peak of the mighty Monte Rosa, one of the highest mountains of the Swiss Alps. Her guides were the famous Burgeners, father and son.

NOTES OF INTEREST FROM LONDON.

From London comes some new notes of interest. One of the novelties seen at Ascot last week was a square parasol fringed at the edge with silk or little silver balls. The fashion was imported from the Riviera, when it was the vogue early in the year.

Some examples of this new sunshade seen at Ascot were very artistic, the panels beautifully embroidered and the fringes charmingly constructed, with tiny rosebuds in them or minute daisies dangling from their stalks.

WE ARE ON THE MAP.

There was a time not far off in the past, when San Francisco did not appear to be on the map as far as the East and Europe were concerned. Now, foreign advices are full of the movements abroad of Californians and especially of the Californians who come from San Francisco.

One reads that Ambassador and Mrs. Tower are happy over the arrival from America of their young sons, Roderick and Geoffrey, who are attending New England "prep" schools.

The Ambassador expects to spend most of the summer in Berlin, but Mrs. Tower with the children, will pass the hot months on the French Coast.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Prior of San Francisco will spend a month in London and then go to the lakes.

Mr. Budd of San Francisco and his niece, who have been spending some time in Paris, have gone on an extensive automobile trip, traveling in an American motor car.

Mrs. William Millar Graham of San Francisco gave a luncheon at the Ritz, the largest hotel in Paris, last week.

Many distinguished guests were at the luncheon, and among the guests was Mrs. Henry T. Scott of San Francisco.

HOSPITABLE ENTERTAINER.

Among the hospitable entertainers of Berkeley is Mrs. Henry Martinez, who is a cousin of Mrs. Henry Butters. Mrs. Martinez is to give a tea this week in honor of Miss Florence Saltontal, whose engagement to Dr. Matheson of New York has just been announced.

The bride is a very charming girl who has many friends here, especially among the girls who have gone to Miss Head's School, of which she is a graduate.

Miss Ballard and Miss Saltontal graduated in the same class from Miss Head's School, and both went East to

SOCIAL NEWS of the WEEK

Vassar, where they spent four years. At a Vassar reunion Miss Saltonstall met Mr. Matheson, and one of the chapters of the interesting romance is the engagement just announced. The young people are planning to make their future home in the East, which is a matter of regret to the many dear friends of the bride-elect here.

Mrs. Martinez is a very gracious hostess and the tea bids fair to be a very welcome mid-summer event.

MR. AND MRS. BORNEMANN IN MILL VALLEY.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bornemann have gone to Mill Valley for the summer, and have taken the Costigan country home there.

The Bornemanns are building a delightful little bungalow in Mill Valley in which they will hereafter spend their summers.

SUMMER DELAYED IN THE EAST.

Summer has been long delayed in the East this year, and June represented the coldest month in the memory of the historical oldest inhabitant. Now, however, the hot summer days have put in an appearance and country homes everywhere are being opened.

Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs has opened "Rose Cliff," her magnificent new home at Newport. It is one of the most gorgeous of the great Newport palaces, and Mrs. Oelrichs has made it very beautiful with art treasures from all over the world.

She is entertaining the William K. Vanderbilts Junior, who arrived at Newport last week, coming down from New York on their yacht, the Taran-tula.

The F. M. Smiths went East two weeks ago, taking with them Miss Sperry. They are at their summer home, "Fresdeleau," on Shelter Island. "Fresdeleau" means near the water and the summer home is just as attractive as Arbor Villa in East Oakland.

Yachting is the principal summer diversion at Shelter Island, and Mr. Smith has all sorts of yachts and boats, many of them winners in the various races planned by the Shelter Island Yacht Club.

Mr. Smith's big yacht, the Effort, must defend the King's Cup in the big yacht race in September.

The days pass pleasantly for the Havens at Sag Harbor. It was the place where Mr. Havens' boyhood days were spent, and all the surroundings are very dear to him.

The large country home is built on a commanding bluff with a splendid view of Long Island Sound. Nearby is a beautiful beach with fine bathing facilities, and Mr. Havens has a swift launch. His new motor boat lives up to its name of "Mascotte the Third," and a French motor car bears Mr. Havens and his guests on delightful expeditions through the woods.

The Wickham Havens go East in the near future and will spend a month at Sag Harbor.

The Philip Chays are to be at Seabright part of the summer, the guests of Clay's sister, Mrs. Harden Crawford. Seabright is a delightful summer resort on the Jersey Coast, and here the Crawfords have built a beautiful and very picturesque summer home. They go to Seabright early in the summer and do not return to their New York home till late in October. The woods about Seabright are very beautiful in the autumn, and people in the East linger much longer in the country nowadays than was formerly the custom.

Mr. and Mrs. John Clay Hampton, formerly Miss Lucy Moffitt, are building a beautiful country home in Ridgefield, Conn. They are planning to spend the greater part of the year hereafter in Ridgefield, opening their town house in New York for only a few weeks of the winter.

COMMANDER GEARING AT MARE ISLAND.

Commander and Mrs. Henry C. Gearing are again at Mare Island, after a delightful trip to Alaska. They have been recently entertaining Miss Kitty Kutz and Miss Eleanor Phelps.

Among the interesting social affairs of the week was a delightful dinner given on board the torpedo-boat destroyer Preble in honor of Ensign Charles S. Kerrick.

Ensign Kerrick has been ordered to Norfolk to take charge of the Hull, and the dinner was a farewell affair to this very popular officer.

The dinner was served on the deck of the Preble, which was very beautiful with its electric lights and lovely floral decorations, sweet peas being used in profusion. Among the guests were Miss Charlotte Gearing, Miss Eleanor Phelps and Miss Kitty Kutz.

GIVE ELABORATE LUNCHEON

Professor and Mrs. Adolph Leuschner of Berkeley entertained at an elaborate luncheon given at the Claremont Country Club on the Fourth of July. The guests of honor were Doctor and Mrs. Simon Newcomb, and ten friends of the host were invited to meet them.

Doctor Newcomb is one of the distinguished professors who have come to Berkeley for the session of the summer school there.

DR. AND MRS. COOPER PLAN TO LEAVE.

Doctor and Mrs. Charles Minor Cooper are planning to leave Oakland on route for the East and Europe on July 14th.

They expect to remain abroad a year and Doctor Cooper, who is one of the ablest physicians on the Coast, will go on with his medical studies. The Coopers have been with the Goodalls ever since the earthquake and the great fire, which destroyed their home in San Francisco.

MR. AND MRS. CHANBLOR GO SOUTH.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Chanblor, who recently returned from an Eastern trip, have gone to Southern California on a short visit. They brought with them from the East a splendid new touring car, a French motor car, in which they make long expeditions, usually entertaining friends.

PICTURES IN THE MIDDLE.

Mrs. F. S. Samuels is an attractive society matron and mother of Mrs. Clarence Crowell of this city.

Mrs. Joan Dibert, a recent bride who was entertained at many informal affairs.

Miss Maile Coyle is a popular society girl with friends on both sides of the bay.

Miss Irene Naisbitt, a bride-elect who is the motif for many informal affairs.

PRETTY JUNE WEDDING.

One of the prettiest of the many June weddings was that of Miss Retta Valentine Jones and Charles Falconer Wright on Saturday evening, June 29, at the home of the bride's mother in this city, the Rev. Charles R. Brown officiating. The house was beautifully decorated for the occasion, the color scheme being green and white with softly shaded pink lights.

Announced by the familiar strain of the wedding march from Lohengrin came the six, ribbon bearers, Misses Grace Webster, Nell Huff, Edith Ewer, Pauline York, Lulu Relfe and Marjory Webster, carrying white sweet peas and wide satin ribbons, which formed an aisle through which entered the bridal party.

The groom was accompanied by his mother, Mrs. A. M. Wright. Then came the bride, leaning on her mother's arm, looking very dainty and sweet in a most exquisite bridal gown of silk mullie, richly elaborated with lace. The costume was completed by a long veil of tulle, and she carried an armful of bride's roses.

The simple but impressive ceremony was performed in a bower of feathery green and white tulle, to the accompaniment of soft music played by Miss Lulu Whiting.

Congratulations were then the order of the hour, followed by an elaborate supper and much merry-making. Several original poems were read and the festivities continued until a late hour, when the happy couple departed in a gaily decorated automobile, amid a shower of rice, old shoes and good wishes.

A large party of San Jose guests came up for the wedding, both the young people being formerly of that city. The bride is the daughter of the late Dr. C. V. Jones of Mountain View, and the groom a member of the well-known Wright family of San Jose. Mr. Wright has for some years held a responsible position with the Chicago-Northwestern Railroad Company in San Francisco, and upon their return from an extended trip to Tahoe and vicinity the young couple will make their home in this city, where they have made many friends.

OUR FOURTH OF JULY.

Oakland's Fourth of July celebration is still the theme of conversation in every household, and the pride of the people in its magnificent success is really good to behold. Anticipations are seldom realized, but this was an exception, the Fourth of July festivities far exceeding any one's dream.

The Fourth of July spirit was early in the air, the night before the eventful day at midnight crowds were walking up and down Broadway, the gayety and life apparent everywhere reminding one of the leading continental cities.

In the early morning crowds of people went on picnics, thousands spending the hot hours of midday in the shady canyons.

At the Country Club during the day there were many visitors, but at night almost every one came downtown for the fireworks on the lake.

The golf games are always on the Fourth of July of more than the usual degree of interest, and the luncheons serve to gather together many friends.

General Oscar Long was the host at a delightful luncheon at the Country Club, entertaining at luncheon a half dozen guests.

The Crellins also entertained at luncheon, and among others at the Country Club were the William Henshaws, Miss Jennie Stone, the Charles Butters, the Dan Beldens, the Harry East Millers and the George De Gollas.

But at night the Country Club was practically deserted, almost every one adjourning to the lake for the procession and the grand display of fireworks making the "Night in Venice" a scene long to be remembered.

The plans of the committee were more picturesque in the half tones of the night.

The Chinese procession was simply gorgeous in its Orientalism, full of wonderful coloring and quaint, picturesque effects. The Chinese joined heartily in our celebration, giving money galore, and this, also, and they were simply a splendid feature of the great parade. All of us had heard of the big dragon a block long with yellow scales, and bead eyes and red tongue that waved in the breeze. He was the great big dragon of our childhood fancies, and we were all just as wild with excitement over him as were the children.

All over town there was a mad rush to see the big dragon. He had been in Los Angeles and he had come from Portland, indeed, he was truly a historic dragon. He was one of the features of that splendid Chinese section of the parade—the section so radiant, so alive with color. Such wonderful silks, such rare and splendid embroideries, all the picturesque effects of the Far East were in evidence on our Oakland streets. It was truly wonderful, the Chinese spirit, the Oriental and the Occidental marching peacefully side by side, the same breeze wafting aloft the Stars and Stripes of the Union, and the great yellow Dragon of the Orient. The Chinese did much to make the procession one of the most unique in our history and to them our thanks are due.

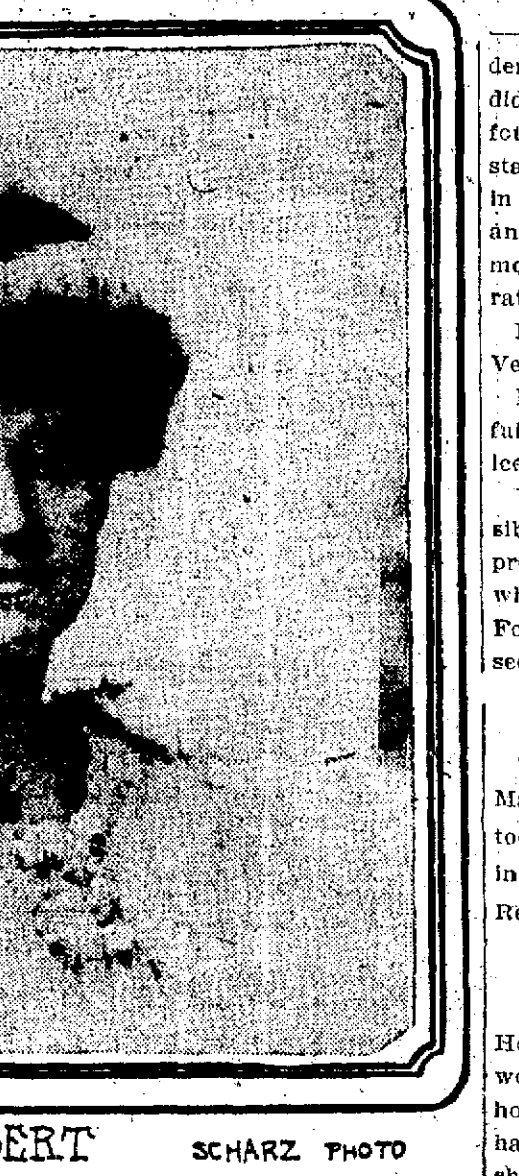

The scene about the lake was wonderful in the extreme, for the climatic conditions were perfect. We have the great natural amphitheater in these lovely foothills, sloping down to the lake and the lake itself is a magnificent mirror, reflecting and repeating all the wonderful light effects which electrical experiments now make possible.

Thousands upon thousands of people were seated on these hill slopes making a picture splendidly picturesque. And they were rewarded, for the "Night in Venice" presented a series of pictures of marvelous beauty. Across the lake floated serenely gaily decorated boats, the red sails shining, the gorgeous Japanese lanterns reflected in the lake, which was a great, calm, placid mirror. Gaily decorated launches darted across the lake, it was all straight out of fairyland.

The long lines of electric lighted lanterns reflected also in the lake made a superb environment, very seldom equaled in picturesqueness.

And then the fireworks began, far and away the best fireworks that have been seen in this State in many a day. The lake and sky were magnificent in wonderful lights. Great showers of splendid effects were in the sky, wonderful fountains of light in myriads of colors started from the lake, red fires burned in the lake and all along the shore line and to and fro in the midst of it all moved the long lines of brilliantly decorated boats.

It was all wonderful, this "Night in Venice" on Lake Merritt.

It was all so beautiful, so wonderfully successful that our "Night in Venice" ought to be an annual affair.

We all had a good time, the best possible time, amid our waving flags, our procession our wonderful fireworks, and when we celebrate again on our next Fourth of July "may we all be there to see!"

THE MEDDLER.

HOLLIDGE-LANE.

The marriage is announced of Miss Marie Lane and Harry Hollidge, which took place Thursday evening, July 4, in the First Methodist Church. The Rev. Mr. Gale officiated.

HEWSTON-GRIMWOOD.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Van Horn Hewston and Frederick P. Grimwood was quietly celebrated at the home of the bride near Fruitvale. It had been planned that the marriage should take place, but it was decided suddenly that the event should be hastened. Only relatives and a few friends were present. Miss Hewston is the daughter of the late General John Hewston, who was one of the prominent men of the earlier life of San Francisco, being identified with the interests of that time. He was also one of our celebration, giving money galore, and this, also, and they were simply a splendid feature of the great parade. All of us had heard of the big dragon a block long with yellow scales, and bead eyes and red tongue that waved in the breeze. He was the great big dragon of our childhood fancies, and we were all just as wild with excitement over him as were the children.

CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY.

Horace Clark celebrated his eighty-eighth birthday last Monday evening, July 1, with a party given at the home of his grandson, Fred Waring, at 773 Sixth street. Clark holds the unique distinction of being a great-great-grandfather and the five generations are at present in the following order: His daughter, Mrs. Rose Waring; her son, Fred Waring; his daughter, Grace Waring Miller, and her little daughter, Esther Miller, one year old.

The house was prettily decorated and the guests were entertained with a musical program followed by a birthday supper. Clark was born at Sheen-tails, New York, July 1, 1819, and has

He is a popular and clever young business man. He and his bride will make their home in Piedmont, where they have taken a house.

BENJAMIN-READ.

The marriage is announced of Miss Ruth Benjamin of Napa, youngest sister of Raymond Benjamin, district attorney of Napa county, to W. E. Read, of this city. The ceremony took place at Trinity Church, in San Francisco, on Wednesday last, the assistant rector, Rev. Mr. Holmes, officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Read will make their home in Berkeley.

SUMMER HOMES.

Mrs. Phoebe Hearst's home on the McCloud river has been opened for the season and among others who enjoy the summer retreats near the river are the Charles Stetson Wheelers, Will Whit-tier, the Will Magees and the Arthur L. Whitneys.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Dr. and Mrs. Albert H. Pratt celebrated the thirty-fourth anniversary of their wedding with a delightful dinner given at their home on Grove street. The decorations suggested holiday time, including flag-mounted cards bearing the names of the dozen guests, many of whom were school friends of the host and hostess.

AUTO TRIP.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Laymance, with Miss Blanche Laymance and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hall Dodge, enjoyed an automobile trip to Monterey over the Fourth.

ENTERTAINED FRIENDS.

Mrs. William A. Schrock entertained a dozen friends at an informal tea given July 4 at her home in East Oakland. After dinner the guests enjoyed the display of fireworks on Lake Merritt.

DECLARED INCOMPETENT;
MAY ESCAPE PRISON BARS*Frank H. Horswill Accused of Complicity in Forgery Case to Be Tried in Near Future.

Frank H. Horswill, the junior member of the realty firm of Kless & Horswill, was declared incompetent today by Superior Judge Ogden and Mrs. Ida M. Horswill was appointed his guardian, with a bond of $135,720. Mrs. L. P. Adams and L. P. Stratton, who have treated the young man during his lifetime, stated on the witness stand that they believed him to be in such poor mental condition that he was unable to person to have the control of his fortune, consisting of a large number of mining stocks given to him by his father, Frank H. Horswill, his father also testified to the sickness suffered by his son.

It is claimed that this is nothing more than a step in the line of making a defense for Horswill when he comes up for trial for forgery. Robert Bousfield, of Alameda, who assisted Horswill in disposing of Oakland realty under fraudulent deeds, was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary at San Quentin and was charged with the same offense as Horswill. He was arrested and enjoys freedom on a bail of $500.

Although Darwin de Golia is Horswill's attorney, the matter concerning his incompetency was handled by Attorneys Allen and Walsh.

The criminal proceedings can be instituted as soon as they are competent, but with this standing he will be more likely to be declared insane and escape the prison bars. It is said that his accomplice is now locked behind bars.

WHO WERE PARENTS OF PRETTY BLUE-EYED BABY?*Hotel Rex Landlady Wonders Over Identity of "Mr. and Mrs. Joel W. Reilly"— Await Doctor.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6.—Mrs. A. R. McNevin, of 701 Turk street, is at present taking care of the "blue-eyed, dark-haired baby," just one month old today, who, at the age of just eighteen hours, was given over to Dr. Wesley Carpenter to be placed in a foundling asylum.

On June 6 a man about 30 years old, and a pretty young girl with black hair and blue eyes, registered at the Hotel Rex on Third street as "Mr. and Mrs. Joel W. Reilly." The baby was born on the same day, and the father's instructions to Dr. Carpenter were, "Wrap it up in a sheet and take it to the foundling asylum." Dr. Carpenter and Mrs. Burnham, a nurse, had been hastily summoned. While the young mother, who is described as "a pretty girl of 20, apparently from the country," wept bitterly, she made no protest and Dr. Carpenter took the unwelcome stranger away, but not to the foundling home.

FATE INTERVENES.

He told Mrs. R. S. Andrews, wife of a St. Louis traveling man, staying at the Commercial Hotel, 761 Turk street, of the matter, and she with Mrs. McNevin, the landlady, decided that the baby should not be taken to the foundling asylum. Mrs. Andrews declared she would adopt him, and Dr. Carpenter easily obtained the parents' consent to this. The release papers were made out in the day, the couple stayed at the Hotel Rex, but again fate intervened to deprive the baby of a home. Mrs. Andrews was taken ill, and was compelled to leave San Francisco, and the baby was left to Mrs. McNevin.

Mrs. McNevin is a widow, and busy with the cares of her hotel, and feels that she is not able to keep him alone.

MUST HAVE HOME.

"He must have a good home," said Mrs. McNevin yesterday. "He is the best, prettiest baby I ever saw, the most good natured and intelligent, and Dr. Carpenter, Mrs. Andrews, the nurse, and myself have loved him from the hour he was brought to us, after his parents had thrown him out of the world. The doctor at first advertised for some one to adopt him, but of the many applicants we refused to consider more than three. Indeed, I would not permit this fine baby to go to any one who was not wholly responsible and could give him a proper home somewhere, and wish that some good and motherly young woman, who is more able to care for him than I, would come to see the sturdy little chap."

MAY SHED LIGHT.

Dr. Carpenter might be able to throw some light on the parentage of "Rex Wesley," as the baby is called, but he is away on a vacation, and nothing is known of "Mr. and Mrs. Reilly" further than they arrived on June 6, and appeared to be from the country. They were very reticent in the days following the baby's unexpected arrival, but the clerk thought they had come by boat from Alameda, which is town up in the redwoods of Mendocino county.

The couple disappeared about two weeks after the birth of the baby, and it is likely that blue-eyed, curly-haired, little "Rex Wesley" will never know of his parents except that his father was "a tall man, about thirty," who came down from the Mendocino redwoods bringing his mother, "a pretty girl with black hair and blue eyes," who cried when the man declared that the baby should be taken away.

IMPERSONATES 'SCOTTY'
AND WAKES UP IN PRISON*Two Prominent Miners of Goldfield Treat
Waterfront Hangers-On to $500
Worth of 'Lubricators.'

George W. Long and Fred Thompson, two well-known prospectors and mine owners from Goldfield, had an exciting experience in San Francisco Wednesday night while taking in the celebration. Long and Thompson left Goldfield last Sunday bent on having a good time in Oakland and San Francisco. They arrived in Oakland and took in the game at the Casino, but when they returned to their hotel they were confronted there by a large number of men, many of whom were armed with pistols. They were taken to a rooming house and kept there until they were released.

During the passage across the bay Long and Thompson had been told of impersonating the renowned "Scotty" of Death Valley, so accordingly procured the inevitable blue shirt and sailor pants from one of the deck hands of the ferryboat. On arrival at the city they headed for the nearest saloon, on East street. Long called for two lubricators and threw down a twenty spot at the same time inviting all bystanders—many thirsty souls of every description—to lubricate.

THE TROUBLE BEGINS.

All went well until Thompson introduced Long as "Scotty" of Death Valley. Long immediately downed an other twenty. News quickly spread along the waterfront and it was not many minutes before the saloon presented a two-cent bargain sale appearance.

The game becoming monotonous, the would-be Scotty and his friend forced their way through the crowd and managed to navigate their way to First street, but the crowd was not to be so easily deterred. They followed them into a saloon, and followed them into a saloon. This is all they can remember, they state, of their adventure for the evening of the Fourth of July. On Thursday morning they were surprised to find themselves in jail.

On making a rigid search of their clothes they discovered that they had not a cent left out of a wad of $500, so had to telephone to a Goldfield broker to pay their fine. They are both perfectly satisfied that "Scotty" is not the man to impersonate to have a good time and will return to the sagebrush camp as fast as the train will take them.

Surplus to End Present Shortage.

CHICAGO, July 6.—The management of the Pullman Company is considering the advisability of using a portion of the company's $11,000,000 or $12,000,000 net earnings for the current year in an enlargement of its works, with a view to manufacturing an increased amount of standard equipment. This plan is said to be favored by the officials of the company, despite the fact that it may necessitate the holding of large quantities of equipment idle and unutilized during the "lean" years of railroading, if such years come. It is stated that a company which is earning such enormous net profits is in a position to turn the danger of an overstocked plant in order to be ready to reap the harvest when the wheels are beginning for the equipment which cannot be procured at any price.

The plant is now turning out an average of 100 freight cars a day. Formerly sixty passenger coaches a month was considered a big business, but now between eighty and 100 are turned out every thirty days.

CINCINNATI, O., July 6.—Divine Healer August Schradler, who styled himself "His Holiness Pope Schradler of the Divine Catholic Church," and whose Vatican or papal headquarters is at 1328 O'Farrell street, San Francisco, Cal., was mobbed in Cincinnati yesterday afternoon. Half a dozen friends of aged Herman Schullinger, a cripple, whom the "Pope" failed to cure by prayer and the laying on of hands, met Schradler on the street and began to hoot him.

Others joined in and soon the divine healer was surrounded by a mob of several hundred, some of whom pelted the "Pope" with eggs and vegetables. When finally rescued from the crowd Schradler's ecclesiastical gown and his long locks were beautifully besmeared with yellow, and a few whiskers were missing from his ecclesiastical beard.

Schradler came to Cincinnati a few days ago to start a church, but he won't start any more. He said that he had been in Cincinnati for a few days, but he won't start any more. He said that he had been in Cincinnati for a few days, but he won't start any more.

Charges of Fraudulent
Use of Seals.

W. R. Thomas, ex-mayor of Oakland and a notary public, was arrested yesterday afternoon in this city by a deputy United States marshal on a federal indictment in which he is charged with having falsely placed notarial seals on pension vouchers.

The indictment charges were made on information of O. L. Stuss, a special pension examiner, to the effect that Thomas certified the signatures of five United States war pensioners to their pension vouchers prior to their maturity and without having seen the signatures. The vouchers were traded to Edward Barnett, an Oakland money lender, prior to their maturity.

The section under which the indictment is framed is made specially applicable to pensions and was enforced for the purpose of preventing advances being obtained upon pension vouchers before their maturity. The penalty for offenses against this act is imprisonment for a term of not more than five years or a fine of $500.

Thomas was taken before Judge Ogden and was released on $100 bonds. Barnett, who was arrested on Tuesday on two indictments, one of which contains five counts, connected with the same matter, was released on bonds of $1000 on each indictment.

There is a wide difference of opinion as to whether or not the new levee will hold when it becomes saturated and the pressure grows great. Many officials of both the Tevis Land Company and Miller & Lux are doubtful on this point. Superintendent H. J. Jastro only says: "We have a fighting chance and are making the most of it."

of Immigrants

WASHINGTON, July 6.—The governors of all the states and territories, including Porto Rico and Hawaii, and the national officers of labor unions, have been asked to furnish a division of information of the Bureau of Immigration with data that will aid the government in properly distributing newly admitted immigrants. The circular issued was prepared by Terrence V. Powderly, chief of division of information.

Powderly's circular to labor union officers contains the following paragraph: "If you keep us informed of strikes, lockouts, blacklists, boycotts, or the probable coming of the same, we will know how to act should application be made to send laborers to a locality where industrial conditions are unsettled."

Powderly asked the governors of the various states and territories to report where the demand for workmen is most urgent, where mechanics are needed, the rates of wages paid for different kinds of labor, where land is obtainable, the price of land, whether cultivated or uncultivated, what nationalities or races would be preferred, and inducements offered to settlers.

MAIDEN AUNT DEFEATS FATHER

DIYERSBURG, Tenn., July 6.—A sensational fight for a child was concluded here recently, the Rev. Fred Long, of Little Rock, being debarred the privilege of caring for his son, Miss Opheila Butterworth, the maiden aunt of the boy, who has had him in charge at her Kentucky home since the death of his mother, will continue to minister to his wants.

The testimony developed that Long married the child's mother after a short acquaintance. A few months later Mrs. Long was granted an absolute divorce. Not a month ago, leaving about $2500 worth of property to the child, which she requested Miss Butterworth to rear. Mr. Long has lately been engaged in Sunday school work at Little Rock, Ark., having again married. When he heard of the death of his wife, No. 1 he instituted habeas corpus proceedings to gain possession of his son.

VETERAN PUBLISHER GINN
MARRIES SOUTHERN LADY*Ceremony Performed July 3—Couple Now on Thirteenth Street.

Cupid certainly gave evidence of his celestial powers when he shot his golden shafts into the hearts of Frederick B. Ginn and Josephine Pierpont, who promptly fell into the arms of Venus. The couple were married last Wednesday, July 3.

Mr. Ginn is a widely known publisher and has large business interests over the east. He is a man of some 77 years and has made his home in Oakland except at such times as business affairs have called him to the east and to other points. He is known in the business world as a man of undoubted integrity and has the profound respect of business men.

Although on the shady side of life, Mr. Ginn is still energetic and vivacious. His late wife was a prominent member of the Ebell society of this city, being largely instrumental in raising the money to purchase the lot upon which the Carnegie library building stands.

The new Mrs. Ginn, whose maiden name was Josephine Pierpont, comes from Nordhoff, Cal., and is aged 44 years. She is a favorite in prominent social circles in Southern California.

When seen by a TRIBUNE representative this morning Mr. Ginn said: "Yes, I was married last Wednesday, and I don't worry. I could not have been married without publicity."

When asked as to his future program, he replied: "What is uncertain, but there are so many beautiful places to live that I shall divide my time between several. When asked as to his picture, he said: "I have never yet had my picture in the papers and I hope I never shall."

Mr. Ginn and his bride are now residing at 670 Thirteenth street, the handsome home owned by Mr. Ginn. The mansion is exquisitely built in Gothic style. The exterior is of fire brick, which is covered with tinted tiles. The house is almost hidden from view by magnificent tropical plants and evergreen.

The interior is massive and magnificently furnished in antique style, giving the appearance of ancient ancestral homes.

This beautiful domicile has been under the careful supervision of Mr. and Mrs. Ginn, two trusted servants of Mr. Ginn and who will still remain in that capacity.

The bride and groom expect to leave in a few days on an extended tour.

JACKSON, Miss., July 6.—Angered because Senator Dolliver took exceptions to his views on the race question, Senator Ben Tillman, who delivered an address here on the Fourth of July, last night issued a challenge to Dolliver to fight a duel. He asserted that only by this method could his honor be vindicated.

Tillman made his usual speech before a large and enthusiastic audience, and at the close he requested all who coincided with his views to stand up. Everybody in the audience stood. Dolliver got up and immediately began to abuse Tillman. He ridiculed every statement the Southern Senator made, while Tillman, who is the guest of an acquaintance at a nearby lake, hurried into town and inserted a notice in the evening papers in which he stated he had been grossly insulted, that in the South the way

GRAND MARSHAL OF PARADE
AND CHIEF AIDE IN FIGHT*Altercation Comes at Close of March, Growing Out of Order Issued by Commander—Denial Made.

As the Fourth of July parade was being brought to a close Thursday Grand Marshal Cragle Sharpe and his chief aide, Dr. Smyth, had a slight altercation, according to a statement by the acting chief of police, regarding the orders which the grand marshal had given.

As Grand Marshal Sharpe ordered Dr. Smyth to look after the rear division and commanded the section between the Japanese and Chinese closed up a stern rebuke on the part of Dr. Smyth ensued. The doctor remarked that there was no use in closing up as it was nearly over. The parade was about to disband, as there were only two blocks from the place of separation. With that remark, it is alleged Grand Marshal Sharpe kicked Dr. Smyth's horse and grabbed it by the bit, causing the animal to rear on its hind legs. This nearly threw Dr. Smyth from the horse. Grand Marshal Sharpe endeavored to stop Dr. Smyth from continuing with the parade, but his endeavors were in vain.

The story continues that as soon as Sharpe had kicked the horse Dr. Smyth said to Sergeant Book: "The parade is yours, sergeant, as far as I am concerned." With this assertion Dr. Smyth traveled down Twelfth street to his residence on Myrtle street.

Speaking of the quarrel Acting Chief of Police Peterson this morning said: "Marshal Sharpe was much excited, and while in that state of mind he fought with his aide, Dr. Smyth, who was practicing by his side during the parade. The two men got into a quarrel, as far as I can understand it, over a very trivial matter, and the policemen on parade duty were called to adjust matters and subdue the fighters. The affair has not been recorded on our books, as it is too trivial."

Dr. Smyth said this morning: "There was no fight. I merely fell off my horse. I deny all to the effect that there was a quarrel or unpleasantness between the grand marshal and myself. Everything was peaceful and harmonious and nothing marred the success and beauty of the parade at its conclusion."

CHICAGO, July 6.—James Carruthers, a leading wheat exporter of Canada, with headquarters at Montreal, was on change yesterday.

"We will have much higher prices," said the man who has made Canadian wheat famous, "because it is a world's market. We are now on an export basis and our wheat is selling freely. While the crop in Western Canada is doing well, that just north of the international line is not doing so well. The crop is late, and that is where we are certain to encounter some trouble. In order to have a wheat crop in Western Canada we must have an unusually favorable weather from this time forward."

"While I wouldn't care to go on record as saying just where I think the price of wheat will reach, I will say that a much higher level is certain, as the Old World must come to this side, not only for wheat and flour, but for all other grains, too."

THE TARIFF ON ART.

The statement is made that art dealers in this country have contrived to have a riotous valuation placed on imported pictures at the Custom House, cheerfully paying the enhanced rates in order to be able to get a higher price from their customers. If this is true, it is time that the government should consider a party to any such proceeding. Incidentally, the issue tends to show the folly of keeping a tariff on works of art at all. American artists have again and again urged its abolition.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

GOSSIP FROM THE SAN FRANCISCO WEEKLIES

SQUEEZING LEMONS ON THE STOCK EXCHANGE.

The ingenious manipulator has at last caught the sharp brokers napping on the mining exchange and he is squeezing the venture-some bunch harder than the proverbial lemon. One big brokerage firm has suspended and others are said to be in a wobbly financial condition. By a stroke of retribution it is the brokers who are suffering this time and not their customers. For several months past a certain coterie of speculatively inclined brokers has been shorting the market persistently despite the comparative lowness of prices. They calculated that the tight money market, the labor strikes, and the usual dull summer months would naturally bear prices, and forthwith they proceeded to help matters along by selling all their own stock and all the stock they could borrow. A small clique of insiders got wind of this situation and decided the moment was most auspicious to trim the shorts and thus indirectly boost the market. They selected three excellent holdings for the campaign—Goldfield Consolidated, Combination Fraction and Jumbo Extension, all good producers and all with stock held in strong hands.

MANIPULATORS VS. BROKERS.

The rise in values was started gently and the brokers and other shorts precipitately sold with a view to hammering down prices. All stock offered was quietly absorbed and another gentle boost was given values. More stock was dumped by the shorts. The market apparently weakened, the shorts became jubilant and unloaded more borrowed stock with a view to submerging values. It was all absorbed and then came a boost in prices that made all the shorts turn livid. Three brokerage firms in Goldfield went to the wall in one day and several local firms began to weaken. That's the story of the street at present. Values are getting stronger and the shorts are getting sicker. It's a contest between the mine owners and the bunch of brokers who have been recklessly shorting the market. The public is not in the game, as is evidenced by the slack interest and the small amount of business transacted on the exchanges. Most of the old flock of lambs were thoroughly sheared in the last slump, and a new lot has not yet come to hand.—Town Talk.

UNUSUAL FLIGHT OF FACULTY MEMBERS.

Berkeley people have been patting themselves on the back rather heartily since President Wheeler's decision to remain in California was announced. They flatter themselves that neither the honor of the position nor the generous salary attached to the presidency of the Boston School of Technology could tempt him from the University of California. But when they come to glance over the announcement soon to be published for the coming college semester they will have to console with themselves over the loss of many of the leading lights of the faculty. The faculty is sadly crippled by numerous "leaves of absence." There is hardly a department which will not have at least one vacant chair in faculty row. Professor Soule, of the Department of Civil Engineering, is already sight-seeing in Europe with his wife and will not return for some eighteen months. Professor Clapp accepted a call to fill the chair of Greek in Rome, and Professor and Mrs. Farrington are in Paris. Professor Wilczynski, the brilliant young man who brought his beautiful young Italian bride to Berkeley only a year ago, has accepted a chair of mathematics at the University of Illinois. The students will perhaps miss most Colonel George Edwards, advisor to the undergraduate men of the University. But the general public will most regret the desertion of Professor Charles Mills Gayley, whose classes in Shakespeare and English poetry have always overflowed with visitors. Colonel Edwards and Professor Gayley were absolutely ordered abroad by their physicians; they are expected to return in a year with new zest for discovering mathematical formulas and poetic "touchstones." Professors Eakle, Hatfield, and Noble, all well-known among educators, are also among the absentees and the administration offices are to suffer in like manner. Mrs. Cheney, appointment secretary of the University, will have a year in Europe for her health, and Mr. Victor Henderson will not fill his position as secretary to the Regents this coming year. Lusty throats will have to be swabbed after the football games by other hands than Doctor Rinehart's, for even he has found his college duties too arduous. All in all, there never before has been a year with so many prominent faculty members absent from the University at one time.—Town Talk.

COLLEGE MAIDS WITH THE HOE.

Of all the fraternal chapters in the University, the Alpha Phi maidens seem to be the most "up and doing." Just now they are raising vegetables in the back yard of their new house on Durant avenue in Berkeley to save living expenses next year. Fraternities are seldom overburdened with household funds, and while they were hesitating about signing the lease for this large new house with its large fat rent, the girls gazed at the big back yard, conceived the idea of raising vegetables, and with hazy dreams of magazine articles they had read about "widows making fortunes raising string beans," they signed the deed and bought their spades and garden seeds. Some of the older members, now married and living in the college town, have been persuaded that a little exercise in the garden each day would be just the thing for their complexions, and of course they are going to help. So if the weather gods are propitious and crops are good, the Alpha Phis can further set the fashion of sending out cards for "green peas" instead of "pink teas."—Town Talk.

GRIEF WHITENED HIS HAIR.

Teachers and students at the University of California will be somewhat shocked when college opens to meet Professor B. L. Newkirk, of the Department of Mathematics and Astronomy, with snow white hair. Dr. Newkirk left the University in May in the best of spirits and eager to take up his summer work in the Astronomical Department at Mt. Hamilton. Six weeks ago he received a telegram that his father was dying. He hurried East, but death was quicker than the trains. The shock was a severe one, and his friends on Mt. Hamilton hardly knew the silent white haired man who came back to them in the place of the brown-haired Professor.

LILY LANGTRY PLAYING AT MARRIED LIFE.

The ever blooming Lily Langtry and her young husband, Sir Hugo de Bathe, are once more in restricted accord. They were seen dining together at the Savoy in London the other night and strange as it may appear the couple seemed quite absorbed in each other. Their semblance of conjugal bliss awakened wide spread attention and many were the expressions of wonder as to the probable future domestic course of the good looking pair. Although they are on very good terms the two are not living under the same roof. Sir Hugo has become an enthusiast balloonist and lives near his big toys at Wood End, the noted de Bathe place near Goodwood, while his wife occupies the largest suite in the smart apartment house connected with the Savoy Hotel.—Town Talk.

LILLIAN RUSSELL AS CUPID'S NURSE.

Evidently love keeps the heart young and preserves that peachy complexion. By a singular coincidence Lillian Russell, the perennial American stage beauty, was likewise in the limelight for public lorgnetting last week. Six months ago Jessie Lewisohn, a son of the copper magnate but the one in the flock who has developed more sporting proclivities than inclinations for serious business, went abroad with a party including the much married Miss Russell. Rumor had been rife for some time that the two were to be married and the result of the trip was watched with considerable curious interest, but no marriage bells were rung among the peals that greeted the return of the jolly party. Last week, however, Lewisohn was called upon by his physicians to submit to a critical operation and he flatly refused to proceed until Miss Russell, who was playing in the West, should have completed arrangements to visit him before he went to the hospital. Lewisohn's brother Oscar was very recently married, in London to Miss Edna May, another pearl among the American stage jewels.—Town Talk.

TRAINERS AND OBSTREPEROUS "CHAMPS."

Over at Squires' training quarters, the other day, they were discussing the trouble of handling the Australian, when "Joe" Semple, an old timer, broke in with the assertion that all the new men started that way and that they all ended as did Sullivan, and forthwith he proceeded to recount how the redoubtable "champion of champs" was brought to the snubbing post. At the time the great John L. was matched to meet Slade. Little Jimmie Wakeley was his manager and Muldoon, the same Muldoon who was so well known out here, was his trainer. Muldoon selected a certain Spring, beyond easy reach of New York, and succeeded at last in inveigling the giant there to begin his training. Muldoon, though a big man and in his prime, was a bit afraid of John L. and handled him gingerly, a bad move on the part of any one who tried to manage him. As trainer he cut out a line of stiff work which John L. sniffed at in a grouchy, complaining way. Every now and then he'd protest, disgusted like, "Oh, give me just a hair cut and a rub down and I'll eat up that guy, Slade."

ON A HUNT FOR THE CHAMPION.

Training went ahead in this disgruntled fashion till some three weeks before the fight when, one day, Sullivan dropped out of sight. They hunted for him high and low but nowhere could they find the least trace of him. Finally one night a poolroom tout—everybody was looking for him by this time—located him in a bar-room of a little French hotel buried deep down on the east side. Muldoon, who was on to his job by this time, promptly notified Jimmie Wakeley. Wakeley, then as now is a chunky, little taciturn runt, but all steel and snap, and if there ever lived a man that Sullivan stood in awe of, it was smoking in his office when he received the tip of Sullivan's whereabouts. As usual he didn't say a word but he walked over to the wall where a blackjack was hanging among a lot of Bowery souvenirs. He slipped it into his pocket and started for the French hotel.

"JOHN L." WAS DOWN AND OUT.

Sure enough there was Sullivan wassailing among a crew that would have brought credit and renown to any Barbary Coast pirate. John L. was well under full sail for one of his rough house carnivals. Little Wakeley, silent and solemn like, walked straight up to where Sullivan was sitting and deliberately whanged him over the head with the blackjack. Sullivan simply settled in his chair, limp and out. "Pick him up and take him up stairs to a room," ordered Wakeley. And they did. The little manager was sitting over the big fellow when he woke up. "John," said Wakeley, pulling out his watch, "Muldoon will be here in twenty minutes and you're going back to the Springs to begin training all over again. Get up and get ready." Sullivan begged for a bracer. "You get ready for breakfast." And he did, and he trained in such a conscientious fashion that Slade was made a piker in the fight. Sullivan was never such a hard man to handle after that episode. Semple's moral, as he claimed, was that if the trainer did not master the champ's spirit, training eventually would.—Town Talk.

JINGOISM RAMPANT IN JAPAN.

If Viscount Aoki, the Japanese Ambassador, is recalled at this juncture it will be significant of one fact: that the jingo party is triumphant in Japan and that the enemies of the United States are in the ascendant. To foment the ill temper of the lower elements against this country, and against San Francisco in particular, photographs of the wrecked Japanese restaurant and barber shop were forwarded to Japan, where they were not only pasted about the dead walls of the cities, but published with rabid headlines in all the yellow papers. Conservative judges here are inclined to believe that all the pother is being raised in Nippon for political purposes; others think the kindling of so much fire among a nation with such inflammable impulses may lead to an uncontrollable outbreak.

ROUSED THE WRATH OF AN EMPEROR.

The situation has served to bring Viscount Aoki more prominently into the public eye. He is a man of distinguished character, strong-willed, self-reliant. He has faced crises between which the present one is insignificant and in most of these he has had to meet storms of disapproval on the part of his countrymen. Very early in his diplomatic career he brought upon his own head a violent outburst of national condemnation by marrying a German woman, the Baroness Von Rahden, widow of a German officer of rank. His country men have never forgiven him that step. The present Viscountess Aoki is a Prussian by birth. The family to which she belongs is an ancient one allied to many of the great houses of German aristocracy. At the time of the marriage, twenty-five years ago, the Viscount was the Japanese Minister to Berlin where he had spent many years. This alliance was the first instance in the history of continental Europe where a woman of rank and title married an Oriental. The marriage so enraged Emperor William that he divested the Viscountess Aoki of all her privileges, barred her from the court and denied her the right of attending any official entertainment given by an official of Germany in any part of the world.

"DO NOT BE SURPRISED IF—"

There's a deep dark secret, that so far has not escaped the borderland of the smart set, which might as well be told, in strictest confidence mind you, to Town Talk readers. If you should chance to see Mrs. Fred McNear suddenly begin to talk to herself with an accent that out-Engishes the English and a manner awfully London, don't you know, pray do not be alarmed. And if you should catch a glimpse of Mrs. Spencer trying to look "real devilish," a regular "woman with a past" expression dangling in her eyes, don't jump too fast at conclusions. Mrs. McNear's "sweet, misunderstood" gaze, and broad sticky A's, and the rakish twist to Mrs. Spencer's eyebrows are not indicative of an over ardent pursuit of "personality." If you look close you will find a copy of "Lady Windermere's Fan" surreptitiously concealed in their nearabouts. It is not that these young matrons are so minded as to be ashamed of reading Oscar Wilde. But, as I hinted before, the fact that society is going to give a production of "Lady Windermere's Fan" has not been announced on the social bill boards and the chief actors hiss a melodramatic "ssh!" every time any one tells the secret above a whisper.

MADE A HAPPY MARRIAGE.

But the aged Emperor William could not deny happiness to the couple and the marriage of the Aokis is said to have proved a very happy one. They have one daughter, the Countess Hatzfeldt-Trachenberg, wife of a high officer in the German army. The Hatzfeldts have one son, Hissi, two years of age. The Viscountess Aoki has just sailed for Germany to visit her daughter.—Town Talk.

INCRIMINATING WITTICISMS.

The other day going down on the train to Fair Oaks I sat behind two young chaps whose conversation was so spicy and so brilliant that I wondered where they had been taking mental massage. Somehow one does not expect people with such an expensive air to interchange epigrams as easily as they might tip a waiter. I was somewhat nettled as the sparks flew until one chap nonchalantly remarked, "Oh, wicked women are a bore. There lies the only difference between them!" It sounded reminiscent and suddenly I realized that they were merely practicing their parts.

MRS. M'NEAR IN A STAR PART.

Mrs. McNear is to play the good woman. Lady Windermere, who is not a bore after all. Mrs. McNear's friends have always believed that the stage lost a great actress when George Hopkins married. Two or three years ago I saw her in a little play at a society vaudeville and she acted with a spirit and ease that promises a creditable interpretation of Lady Windermere. Mrs. Spencer, who as Florence Josselyn frequently took part in amateur theatricals, will essay the role of Mrs. Erlynne and her past. Frank Mathieu is stage manager, and the play is to be presented at the little opera house in Redwood City, so it will be a sort of family affair with an audience made of the people who have summer homes in that locality. I believe the proceeds are for the benefit of a church.

WILL BE A GREAT SOCIETY EVENT.

In one of the popular plays last season in New York some one says, "Hell and the stage drawing room are two places where there are no stupid people." There is certainly not a stupid moment in Wilde's play and it will be most interesting to see it interpreted by society people. Lady Windermere and her set are supposed to move in the best English society and there should at least be none of the gaucheries which amateurs unaccustomed to social amenities might commit. Perhaps the fact that the blue blood of the promised cast is not a stage "prop" will cast a glamor over any other deficiencies in the production.—Town Talk.

JUDGE HEBBARD.

One trait of Judge Hebbard that must make him dear to any one with a spark of melodrama in him is his lack of vanity. He is pretentious as a keg of nails and as sentimental as a rose-jar. Whatever egotism he possesses is there because he has not the hypocrisy to conceal it. He does not sit on the bench up to his nose in imagined ermine. Even if he had to wear the ermine in judicial reality, he would have it cut out as a smoking jacket. "Jack Hebbard" he is to his friends; and on or off the high seat would just as soon be Jack as Judge. Witness the following, from his forthcoming book of verse; and what other judiciary would come down from the clouds of law to appear as a man in a title-page like this: "A DECK OF CARDS AND A JOKER." Shuffled and Dealt by J. C. B. Hebbard, known as Judge Hebbard, and sometimes called Jack Hebbard.

There you have the magnanimous reply to all criticism of which he has lately suffered. Hebbard does not pose as a judge who writes poetry; he is a poet passing his leisure hours as a judge. "Shuffled and Dealt by J. C. B. Hebbard." Delightful simplicity! As he deals out a two-spot, a king, a jack, an ace or what not, he can see in the reds and blacks the faces and souls of all his critics. Which represents Heney, which is the Bar Association; which is reputation; and which is Hebbard? From all accounts, he sees himself as any and all, one time or another; sometimes the Jack of Clubs, sometimes the Ace of Diamonds, and then again only the Joker. The Grievance Committee of the Bar Association does not gloat with an admiring eye on these amenities. Their idea was that Hebbard took too much of that which brings visions of whose reality's bite it is an antidote.

MOTHER.

Mother, mother, dear sweetheart, We had to part; we had to part, And when you died—
By God, I cried.
Do you know, in the long ago At twelve, one night By the candle light—
A stormy night—
The clock was right.
I turned the shroud from off your head,
But, mother, mother, you were dead;
And then I said,
"Mother, mother, speak to me." I thought perhaps that it might be,
But mother dear was dead you see. I wonder if some time again I'll see you, then?
God knows, not me.
Amen! Amen!

MARRIAGE OF MISS SALINGER

The marriage of Miss Ruth Salinger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Salinger, and Charles de Young Elkus, son of Mrs. Alfred Elkus, was quietly celebrated at the residence of the bride's parents in Oakland, last Sunday evening. Rabbi Friedlander read the marriage service. Mr. and Mrs. Elkus will reside in this city. The groom is the nephew of M. H. de Young and is named after his other uncle, the late Charles de Young, the first editor of the Chronicle.—Wasp.

YOUNG DOCTOR'S TROUBLES.

A well-known young doctor of San Francisco has been causing his relatives much anxiety of late by the announcement of his engagement to an attractive member of the nursing sisterhood. It seems that the young lady is undesirable, partly because of a difference in faith, but chiefly because she has more charm than material accessories to commend her; and the family of the doctor who, in the process of acquiring their present wealth, have forgotten—or perhaps are too mindful of their own family tree, are insistent upon his breaking off an engagement that will do so little to boost him up the rungs of the social ladder. The gentleman himself has the—in the eyes of his family—unfortunate tendency to be more interested in the practice of his profession than in social climbing. Besides, he has a marriageable sister who has been in Society rather longer than it would be polite to mention, and is still unclaimed. Apparently the young couple have submitted to the assaults of the opposing parties, but it is whispered that indications point to a quiet ceremony two or three weeks ago in a place some little distance from San Francisco. At any rate, the two are strangely tranquil over the rupture, and Cupid makes up in cunning what he lacks in sight.—Wasp.

MRS. MEIN ENTERTAINS.

Miss Elizabeth Sheehan, the fiancée of Bernardo Shorb, was the guest of honor at a dinner given by Mrs. Thomas Mein at the latter's home in Oakland. Covers were laid for twenty. The table decorations were in white carnations and delicate ferns, the place cards extremely dainty, being in water colors, and bore the name of all the guests present.—Wasp.

SALVATION ARMY.

The Salvation Army has been holding an annual camp meeting at Benlah Park in the suburbs of Oakland, and one of the new converts was a modest appearing young girl, who worked for a wealthy family in East Oakland in the neighborhood of "Borax" Smith's palatial home. This girl had rendered faithful service for a period of three years, and she little thought that by becoming a Salvationist she would lower herself in the estimation of her employer, and was very much surprised when told that she could not remain in her position unless she would cease to wear the army uniform, which, as a member of the organization, she refused to do. Now the question arises, what was there in the modest suit of blue and poke bonnet that should cause people supposed to possess intelligence to be so prejudiced? The army uniform is certainly entitled to as much respect as that of the Dunkards, Quakers or Sisters of Charity. The Salvation Army uniform stands for religion, temperance and charity in every form, and is recognized as such by all who are interested in the betterment of the world, and that a family should be willing to discharge a girl on account of being a Salvation Army lass is past comprehension.—News Letter.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS.

It is sometimes amusing to read the titles of some of the themes discussed by students who are ending up their career as high school students. In Oakland last week the programme at the commencement of the Oakland High School announced as two of the subjects to be expounded by students yet in their teens, "Secondary Education in the United States and Germany" and "Utility or Development—Which?" Ye gods and little fishes! What is the world coming to?—News Letter.

SEALS SHOW IMPROVEMENT

Javo, gents. Javo. Of course you are Kliponax to what Javo means? The blow off. Oul Monsieur, the blow off.

Well, the Oaklanders javed good and proper at Recreation Park in San Francisco yesterday, and when they counted the score at the end of the nine sterling innings, the Seals had the game locked up 4 to 0.

And we had erected such a nice dream city in our minds before the game. Wright was to do the firing. That gent to yesterday had the Tontogony course on the Seals. They had never been able to solve the deacon's pump curve. Willie got hepped to this curve when he was a kid. In those days Tontogony dwellers use to slide to the town pump and all the pitcher. Willie developed a peculiar drop curving from pushing the pump handle up and down.

Since Willie's been in our fair city he has not had a chance to get any of the pump handle exercise, and his curve was on the blink yesterday, although at that he allowed the Seals only four hits.

But before the game we had it figured that the Seals were going to have a lonesome time. We had that pictures thoroughly framed in our mind. The kerflop canvas was ripped.

Just when we were putting our last mental dab of vermilion on the thing son of the Seals' downfall that bunch grew wicked.

JAVO That was the blow off and we got off at the short and meager end of a 4 to 0 score.

At that it was an unusual outburst of the national pastime. The hard boiled egg he pitches finally prevailed over Deacon Wright and the pounced egg that he flings at opposing athletes.

With the hold-over of flags and hand-painted decorations with which Mr. Gleason regaled the bugs and bugettes on the fourth of July the Seals just had to win. The constitution follows the flag and the Seals do the same thing.

Mr. Long must have fed his bunch firecrackers the night of the Fourth. Anyhow the tribe of Danny pulled off some pyrotechnics that pleased the bugs and bugettes on hand.

As a rule the Commuters are splendid hitters, but in a moment of mental aberration some time ago Truck Eagan named one of his bats Bill Squires. While the Australian was being pulled up some in the daily press and had his picture taken showing that his shoe shows like Fitzsimmons' that bat could go some. But when Bill got licked the bat took a slump, and the presence of a bat named after such a punk pugilist had a depressing effect on the rest of the Commuters' wood pile, and even Evelyne was so sour at calling to be in the same company having Bill Squires that she couldn't get in a hit. The only thing left to the discards. We might be able to bat some

Oscar Jones, who pitched for the Seals, won his first victory of this season against the Commuters. As a rule we have Mr. Jones thoroughly baffled, but we couldn't even get him yesterday, and as a result of his refrigerator curve. The first run of the game was registered by the Commuters in the third round. Shaughnessy dispatched a glancing bouncer to second, which Haley proceeded to boot. Morley came through with a drive to center, and Morley plucked both along with a sacrifice. Both Hildebrand and Irwin were tied for high wide ones at them, and as he did so willingly, each was passed, and Shaughnessy was forced over the park. Two more were sent across in the next period. Jones opened up the inning with the cushion wallop that skinned his foot on the rubber. He pitched the third sack. Shaughnessy walked and stole and Morley produced the most timely bingle of the day, a pretty drive into left center, that brought both of his teammates in.

The fourth and last tally for the day was tucked up in the seventh. Morley got his base on balls for the second time during the afternoon, and Hildebrand slipped the ball to the right garden. Hildebrand had his hurry up shoes on and neatly tossed Hildebrand out at first. In the meantime Hildebrand was around to third. Irwin produced a sky scraper that Eagan should have gathered. Hildebrand evidently did not feel inclined to work for the game fondly at little Squires, the latter tore in from the bottom of the bat. The younger made a heroic try, but the sphere refused to stick to his mitt and Morley placed the imprudent foot on the rubber.

The Oakland tossers did not show any ginger at all from the moment the Seals began to lead. They acted like a bunch of men under the influence of a strange brand of opiate and took their turns at the bat with an air of solemnity that would have made any undertaker travel fast to beat.

Oakland could not even start a kick against the rulings of Umpire Derrick. The game ran its course smoothly with practically no objections from the clubs on either team. Devereaux attempted to start something a few times, but being that the rest of the game he did not even take the trouble to support him, he looked sadly over the field and tried to fall back into the quiet groove with his companions. Then, as might be expected, silence reigned on the field. The score:

SPORTSMAN'S CATCH

By T. P. MAGILLIGAN.

BARNEY Dreyfuss accuses rival players of trying to hurt Hans Wagner. Poor little Hans. It would be just as easy to find a flea of trying to cut an elephant's throat.

WHAT'S in a name? Jack Lush, of the St. Louis Nationals, never mixes with anything stronger than a lemonade or a plain soda.

STRIKES us that those Portland boys are beginning to make a noise like real live ball-players.

BILL Squires demands another chance. He says that Burns fouled him. Bill claims that Tommy hit him with a cleaver while he was studying the picture machines.

UP to the Fourth of July, we thought that California had all the countries in the world tied to a mast when it came to producing fruit. After we saw Australian Bill, however, we'll have to revise our judgment so far as quinces are concerned.

WILLIE Reidy was among those who coughed up Seven-Fifty to see the Great Australian Quince, Willie, however, is a game, and he's not telling everyone he meets that he fell for that piece of bunk.

ENGLISHMEN who are experimenting with baseball may ruin our national pastime if care is not taken. Recently in London it took from 2 p. m. to 7 p. m. to play three innings.

NOW that the wings and halo have been stripped from McGraw's Giants that team looks like a very ordinary bunch.

UNK Russell used better judgment than Bill Squires. He took no chances.

THE new rule requiring the ball-players to dress and undress at the ball grounds in the National League Circuit will deprive the New York Giants of their daily vegetable bath.

THE Pekin to Paris auto races furnishes another instance of how people will go out of their way to get into trouble.

JACK Johnson finds it rather trying to be a sport. That dainty patent leather footgear does not run in rough sleazes for "Lil' Arthur's" footies.

IF all players were put in jail for passing the umpire, like Tim Flood was, the Los Angeles team would have to carry a regiment.

TOMMY Burns says that the only way he cares to meet Jeffries in the ring is when that large person is the referee. Some sense, Tommy; some sense.

THERE'S a California girl named Miss May, who can (Sutton) play some tennis.

BILL Squires is thinking of taking a whack at Mr. Mike Schreck before returning home. Be careful, Bosh-ter. We don't know any insurance company that would care to take the risk.

JONES won his first game of the season from the Oaks yesterday, while Wright suffered his first defeat at the hands of the Seals, all of which goes to show that baseball is one of those games where you never can tell.

AND Philadelphia "Jawn" O'Brien didn't even get a chance to smile.

TOMMY Burns seems to be a regular double-crosser. He crossed Philadelphia John, and then that right cross that he slipped Squires was an artistic and comprehensive piece of work.

ES a h' obstinate bugger, a h' obstinate bugger, is the way that Barney Reynolds views Squires. After seeing him against Tommy Burns we are forced to take a different view of the matter.

CABOCHAN won the Spendthrift Stakes at New York yesterday. It's a cinch that he would never have won if Professor Frank Lewis had been entered as an added starter.

IT would have been more appropriate if they had pulled off that Squires-Burns fight at Dreamland, don't you think so?

Interesting Notes About Racing Matter

By LEE DEMIER

The cream of the Handicap division will sport silk at the different race-tracks today and lovers of the "sport of kings" will not want for material. The Merchants' stakes at a mile is the feature at Los Angeles, and Windsor an event for timber-tappers is down for decision, and at the Meadows, the Ladies' plate for two-year-olds, and a handicap at a mile, are the star events, each and every one a gem in itself.

Ex-Jockey Trvers has Distributor at Seattle. John Quinn, the well-known racing man, will spend a few weeks at some nearby springs before going to Seattle. Rudolph Spreckels' Borghesi and San Alviso were shown for the first time on the Coney Island Jockey club course the other day.

E. R. Bradley has lost patience and money trying to win a race with Bad News. The poolroom at Elvas has reopened. The management secured a favorable decision in the courts.

In celebration of Nealon's victory in the Suburban Handicap, C. E. Dunnell has arranged a banquet for the sportsmen and newspaper men at Sheepshead Bay yesterday. In the course of the festivities he is credited with having said: "A practical horseman must observe strict honesty. I believe every horseman could be on the level. I make a public prediction now that Faust, all things considered, will win the Brighton Handicap."

The New Orleans merry-go-round has a new starter, the fourth in six days. His name is John Carey.

Peter Worth, a New York book-maker, was robbed of $6000 by a pickpocket in a crush at Brooklyn bridge Saturday. Jockey Frank Otis, who has been riding at the New Orleans half mile track, has gone to Seattle to ride for Steve Judge.

The rumor that another race track is to be built in the vicinity of Cincinnati on the Kentucky side of the Ohio river has been revived. Feis won the Kaiser's Shield, one of the most coveted prizes of the German horse world, making the fourth winner of the race that George Walker has trained for Weinberg Brothers.

There is a possibility that Richard Croker will send over from Ireland some of his horses to race in this country next year, and New Yorkers are hoping that Orby will carry his colors in the Suburban handicap.

Oswald Blonchi (Daggle Smith) will ship his horses now at Williams Park to Sacramento.

James Rowe, trainer of James R. Keene's stable, is an early riser. He is up every morning during the racing season at 4 o'clock. He requires that every one of the stable's employees shall be ready to begin the day's work at the same hour.

At Latonia today the Merchants' Stakes is down for a decision.

Old Honesty, in different hands, would be one of the best three-year-olds in the country. He is never galloped twice by the same boy. No boy rides him twice, and a different groom takes care of the colt almost every day. This colt should be the best bread-winner in the West with proper care. Louisville Courier-Journal.

"All sorts of stories are in on a race track and some of them are mighty foreign to anything on the turf," says the Enquirer. The conversation in the Dunne corner took a shift the other day and Pat Dunne started it. It was after Easter Brown had been boosted from $700 to $1100. "From one natural to another," said Pat.

"Did you ever shoot craps?" asked a bystander. "Yes," said Pat. "I did many days back, and it was on the turn of the dice that my racing stable hung. I did not have so many then. The last shake was for $3200, and the man tossed out a pile of aces and I have my stable of horses still. I took those dice and chopped them into pieces, as I imagined that no man living could make as many passes as the man turned out if the dice were straight. But they were all right."

Here is the Cincinnati Enquirer's opinion of Lee and some other Latonia riders: "Lee is a good boy to get away from the post. If he gets off in front he will ride a good race. If he fails to rush his mount to the front he is clear sailing there is nothing doing from Mr. Lee. He can mess it up as bad as any stable boy when he gets into close quarters. Pickens is about the best of the youngsters, and E. Martin is coming right along."

There is every reason to expect a tremendous crowd at the opening game, which will be called at 2:30. The opening of Alameda Recreation park means a big step in advance for the State League, and the fans of the bay city will be able to witness some of the fast ball that this league is putting up without traveling to nearby towns.

On the form that has been shown by the Oakland and Alameda teams of late the contest on Sunday should be a very close one, and with the grounds in all-out condition the showing of these teams during the past few weeks in their games, the contest should be a very close one.

In the absence of Mayor Taylor of Alameda, the first ball will be pitched by Councilman Fred L. Lutz, and Mike Fisher has consented to umpire.

"BOSHTER BILL" SQUIRES

Antipodean Can Fight Better Than He Showed With Burns at Colma
Independence Day.

By EDDIE SMITH.

Since the Fourth of July I have said to myself many times: "Shame on you, Eddie Smith, I thought you said Squires could fight."

I must admit that, like the other people who touted the Australian, I was baffled by the supreme confidence of the new comer, and the wonderful showing made by the Antipodean at his training camp. For my part I am still unconvinced.

It is all right and no doubt the American people would be perfectly willing to give him another chance, but if that chance is to be given let it be with a man that he will have a chance to show that he can do with a successful pugilist asserted itself with Tommy Burns. One year ago Burns would never have knocked the Australian out in any one round or several rounds. He never beat a man in his life as he did Squires. The that the Australian champion can not fight better than he did Thursday afternoon.

When the news of the battle reached Maryville that Burns had won the fight in one round and that Squires had been practically no show against the American, Joe Thomas who was standing near by, said with a sigh that he would never again try to pick a winner, and at the same time he pulled from his pocket a duplicate program which he had sent out to some of his friends advising them to play Squires and informing them that the Australian was a wonder.

When it is remembered that Thomas put in several days at the Squires camp, and had the gloves on with the big fellow many times and finally stopped boxing with him because he hit so hard that the waterweight was afraid that he might receive some injury that would ruin his chances at that he would win inside of ten rounds.

BUSY TIMES ARE LOOMING UP IN LOCAL BUILDING

MORE EVIDENCES OF THE BUILDING IMPROVEMENTS WHICH ARE IN PROGRESS AT PRESENT IN CITY OF OAKLAND

REINFORCED CONCRETE BASEMENT OF W. P. FULLER CO.'S NEW BUILDING.

STEEL FRAMEWORK OF NEW LINCOLN GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

Reinforced Concrete Walls of the Basement of the Big New Building of W. P. Fuller & Co. and Steel Framework of Lincoln Grammar School.

Since the earthquake of April 18, 1906, the plans of Lincoln Grammar school, on the block fronting on Alice street, between Tenth and Eleventh streets, have been completely remodeled. The structure is now in course of erection on the new plans. When the earthquake occurred, the walls of the first story were partly up, and the mortar being green they were badly wrecked. The plans on which the structure was then being built contemplated the erection of a fireproof building only. It was not supposed from previous experience when the plans were adopted that any earthquake was likely to visit this city strong enough to wreck any ordinarily well constructed building; hence no provision was made in them to draft them on earthquake proof lines. Fire was the only foe which then excited any fear, and everything was done to reduce that danger to the minimum. The new plans have been designed to make the building both earthquake and fireproof. The walls will be carried and the floors sustained within a steel frame, the up- rights of which are now being erected as will be seen in the accompanying half-tone reproduction of a photograph taken during the week.

THE W. P. FULLER & CO. BUILDING.

One of the photographs herewith reproduced shows the strong reinforced concrete walls enclosing the basement of the new three-story building which is being erected by W. P. Fuller & Co. on the southwest corner of Tenth and Alice streets, diagonally across the street from the Lincoln School building. These concrete walls are unusually thick and strongly buttressed as they will have to carry not only the thick and heavy brick walls, but the enormous weight of the three floor loads, when the structure is stocked.

OFFICES OF LOCAL ARCHITECTS ARE AGAIN BECOMING SCENES OF GREAT ACTIVITY

Latter Half of the Year Promises to Witness Much More Extraordinary Building Improvements Than Have Been Hitherto Recorded.

New life is visible plainly in the offices of the local architects, now that the holidays are over, and they are "getting busy"—busier, in fact, than they have been for some time past. The prices of construction materials have approached more closely of late their normal condition than they have at any time during the past six months, and those whose plans for erecting new buildings had been temporarily suspended owing to the excessive prices which had been artificially established, are now ready to proceed to carry them out. Their energies are being directed chiefly to supplying new dwellings, for which there is a steadily increasing demand. But there are a great number of more ambitious business structures which have been reviewed and before the next three months is passed these will be in active course of development.

The Board of Public Works is kept busy issuing permits. The last week has been demoralized owing to the midsummer holidays and the suspension of business on the Fourth, but even that has not stopped the course of development, as is shown by the subjoined applications for permits filed with that body during the week ending Wednesday, July 3d:

OAKLAND'S REALTY MARKET IS NOW FAST RECOVERING ITS PAST BUOYANCY

Semi-Annual Dividends and Bond Interest Are Introducing New and Large Resources Seeking Local Investment.

Now that the holidays are over, the real estate market is already beginning to recover the buoyancy which marked it about three months ago, when an urgent demand for money to relieve the New York market temporarily drained the resources of the local banks and created a local stringency. But it earned big interest in the Eastern metropolis and that came here to swell the semi-annual dividends of stockholders and depositors. These semi-annual dividends are now beginning to assert themselves. According to a well-informed financier, these dividends embrace the bulk of the interest on the outstanding municipal and corporation bonded indebtedness. Nearly all of the stock and bonds of the big local corporations are carried here. The interest on the bonds and the dividends earned by the stock, therefore, remain here.

OAKLAND FINANCING ITSELF.

"It is a matter of fact," remarked this gentleman, the other day, "that we Oaklanders are financing nearly all of the enterprises started and improvements undertaken in the community and not borrowing abroad. It is one of the most remarkable developments in the history of any community in the country. I doubt very much whether Oakland property-owners are owing the San Francisco banks, for example, more than $2,000,000, if that much. And until the last ten days there has been only one large loan contracted by any Oakland firm outside of this city. The fact that we are financing ourselves is a magnificent card for the community and bespeaks a condition of unparalleled prosperity. As showing the effect of the semi-annual bank settlements, the dividends of one local corporation alone add about $700,000 to the assets of the community immediately available for employment in the development of new building improvements and the establishment of new enterprises. And that is only one case out of many. Private loans are now being made at reasonable rates of interest in large numbers. Ninety days ago we were loaning millions to New York, and the large interest which the money brought has come back to be utilized at home."

MONEY BAGS LOOSENING.

There is a general loosening up among those who have private capital to invest. The great Fourth of July demonstration was the greatest advertisement Oakland ever had. It opened the eyes of the tens of thousands of strangers from the interior and elsewhere who visited the city to witness it. Most of them were drawn here by curiosity. They had heard that Oakland was growing, but they doubted, until they saw with their own eyes, that the growth was on as large a scale as had been represented. These visitors marveled at what they saw, and their common verdict was that Oakland is destined to be a big, if not the biggest, city on the Pacific coast. "Couldn't believe what I heard about what was taking place here," remarked one old-time San Franciscan, who had not visited Oakland since the great calamity which overtook his home city last year; "but I cannot doubt what I see with my own eyes," he added.

EFFECT OF THE CELEBRATION.

As an illustration of the effect of the celebration on men who have money to loan, the citing of one instance will suffice. Some months ago, one of this class became disgruntled because an investment which he desired to make and which promised good returns could not be carried out, because he could not then borrow a large sum of money from the local banks, which he needed to consummate the deal for the period during which his private resources, ample in themselves, were temporarily tied. In a fit of semi-anger, he declared that he would transfer his operations across the bay, where he then thought better opportunities for immediate gain were obtainable. Since the celebration of the Fourth he has experienced a change of heart, and at once informed his agent that he had $50,000 to place in Oakland property and improvements. "There is a whole lot of private money coming in here from the outside for investment in land and in new improvements," this agent remarked, and everything is already pointing to a more active and prosperous condition in Oakland than it has ever before witnessed. The grand spectacle witnessed on Lake Merritt on Thursday night has stimulated every foot of property within sight of it, for the demonstration gave the owners of such properties new ideas of the value of their possessions and the possibilities of that beautiful water park of which they had never before dreamed.

NEW BANKS.

The opening of a new bank in this city, of which mention is made in another column, is also a new evidence of growth. This will be the fourth bank to be organized to do business here within the year, and there are others in course of development. The field is regarded as the best for banking purposes in the Far W

CIRCLES AND ALSO IN THE REAL ESTATE MARKET

REALTY VALUES ON THE SOUTHERN FRONTAGE OF THE CITY ARE FIRM

Prices of Land Continue to Advance and They Have Ceased to Be Dependent Upon the Survival of the Chinese Colony.

When the Chinese took possession of a large area of the southeastern corner of the Sixth Ward adjacent to the southern water front, most of the real property in that quarter was at a very low ebb. At some points it was obtainable at almost any old figure a prospective purchaser might offer for it. An element in the community had secured a footing there over a quarter of a century ago and the squalor in which its members lived and the lack of attention which the local authorities gave to public improvements there acted as a deadly blight on realty values during that long period. The incoming of the Chinese rooted out this element, stimulated improvements private and public and opened the eyes of everybody in the community to the great value of the district for business and industrial purposes. Property values rapidly advanced, multiplying more than ten fold in many cases. White industries, warehouses and wholesale business firms have been since endeavoring to gain a footing there, owing to its proximity to the railroads and to the improved section of the southern water front. But they have been only partly successful, owing to the Chinese occupation of the territory.

CHINATOWN HAS SERVED ITS PURPOSE.

The Chinese have performed their mission toward realty in that district. They have removed the blight formerly resting on it and given it a substantial value from which there can be no retrogression, because there is no part of the city where those combinations which give great value to realty exist in such perfection. But its future advancement in value is now entirely independent of the presence of the Chinese colony. The city is on the eve of transportation and other developments which promise to make it vastly too valuable for occupation by the Chinese as it is at present occupied by them, and it is at present a matter of no concern to those owning property in that quarter whether the colony remains or migrates. In fact a strong sentiment is growing among them that the sooner it does migrate the quicker the land will be occupied by interests of a vastly more important character to this neighborhood in particular and to the city at large.

CREATION OF CHINATOWN.

Partly because of a sudden emergency and partly because of the eagerness and the advance of some owners of property to secure quickly high returns for their investments from the Chinese merchants and manufacturers who were in as much of a hurry to save their trade and custom, the earlier structures were hastily and flimsily built and the Chinese colony spread over a larger area than was actually necessary for its accommodation. Anything with a roof over it was then deemed better than exposure to the open or life in refuge camps. Subsequently better buildings were erected. Many of them are as strongly built as any wooden buildings in existence in the State and are suitable to carry any load of merchandise or machinery; and accompanied with this development began a systematic concentration of the Chinese, who exercised as keen a discrimination in doing so as any race could have been expected to do. Many of the earlier constructed shacks have thus been vacated for better quarters.

TRANSBAY AGENTS AT WORK.

Meantime the owners of property in the old Chinese quarters across the bay have had Chinese agents working among the colony here to induce its return to where it had been systematically persecuted for over half a century, assuring its members that if they returned they would be given perfect immunity hereafter from the persecutions they formerly suffered and guaranteeing the maintenance of their peculiar institutions without molestation from the local authorities or any other source. The keepers of the lottery dens and some Chinese merchants have thus been persuaded to migrate hence.

MISPLACED FAITH.

These have discovered, however, that their faith was misplaced and that their return was a mistake. They complain to their countrymen who have remained here that they are charged higher rents in the restored Chinatown than they were paying before the conflagration which drove them to this side of the bay. The promise of immunity has not been kept, as the old practice of systematically raiding their lotteries has been resumed. Besides, being isolated from the rest of the community, with an extensive desolated area surrounding them and imperfect means of transportation, they find that what little business they are doing is transacted under the most adverse and discouraging conditions. They are consequently now repenting the change and are said to be replying to return to Oakland. Such is the word they have sent to the Chinese colony here. The only benefit they get from being across the bay in the old locality is that the Oriental steamships dock on that side and they are relieved from the transbay shipment of their importations, which they find more than offset by the enormous cost of drayage. The latter is, in fact, overshadowing the expense of transbay freighting.

LAND VALUES SECURE.

Whether those Chinese who have left Oakland remain away or return it is no longer a matter which can affect property values in the district the colony is occupying in Oakland. "Those values can never recede," is the way an intelligent student of the situation engaged in the realty business puts it. "There are other agencies at work now," he added, "more important than any Chinese colony stiffening prices in that quarter, because there is a growing and irrepressible demand for the property for better uses than the Chinese can ever put it to." "The Chinese," he continued, "simply opened the eyes of everybody concerned to the value of that district for commercial purposes. And as soon as they vacate, if they mean to vacate, the quicker those agencies will invade the territory and utilize it. The effect will be, of course, to advance land values all along the line, for in that section it is today just as good as gold now as it ever was. Whenever you see the construction gangs of the Western Pacific entering the city," he concluded, "look out for a sharp advance in property values all along the southern water front, particularly that which is adjacent to the business part of the city."

AN INCREASE IN ALAMEDA HOMES

Real Estate Dealers Are Well Satisfied with Present Condition of Market.

ALAMEDA, July 6.—Local realty conditions remain unchanged. The same activity which has characterized the market for the past month continues and the real estate dealers are well satisfied. Though there has been a slight falling off in sales during the early summer months, it has not been as great as has been the common occurrence. There are numerous improvements being made that attest to the prosperity of the merchants.

Houses are being built in every section of the city. The Real Estate Exchange is to open its quarters this month and a competent man will be in charge. The outlook for a successful winter season is bright. The exchange held its regular weekly meeting yesterday and transacted some routine business. A member of the Alameda Land Company said today:

"The Alameda Land Company reports numerous sales and increasing inquiries for homes and building lots. Among the many important sales consummated by the firm this week was the large 9-room home on Central avenue, formerly owned by L. S. Shannon, to James Dunn, of San Francisco, at a cost of $12,000. This property has a frontage of 95 feet in one of the finest locations in the city. Another very important sale made by the Alameda Land Company was the home of Mrs. Ryer on Buena Vista avenue, near Park street, a large 10-room house, lot 50x150, to F. S. Adams, of San Francisco.

"The many recent, large sales made by the firm speak volumes for the future of the city. The company is now building a fine 6-room bungalow for Mr. Buja on Fifth street, besides about twenty new homes that are being rapidly disposed of. While it is generally expected to be dull around the holidays, the company is taxed to its capacity to meet the demand, and is using every effort to supply the want. The changing of the railroads from steam to electricity, as promised by the Southern Pacific, besides the many other important improvements that will shortly take place, will place Alameda in the foremost ranks of the cities around the bay. The property in Alameda has gradually increased in value according to the demand."

JAMES PRESCHO BUILDING, EAST SIDE OF SAN PABLO AVENUE, BETWEEN SIXTEENTH AND SEVENTEENTH STREETS.

Lattice Girder Earthquake-Proof Steel-Frame Front, Something Unique in Design and Economical in Modern Architecture.

The above photograph of the James Presho building now being constructed on the east side of San Pablo avenue, between Sixteenth and Seventeenth streets, was taken a few days ago and shows the special feature in the plans which the architects, McCall & Wythe, have introduced. This consists of a lattice girder steel frame earthquake proof front.

The building stands on a lot 25x100 feet. It is four stories and concrete basement. It will contain one store and three lofts. The contract calls for an expenditure of $22,000. It is regarded as the most economical form of earthquake proof front construction yet devised. The building will be finished in the course of three weeks.

OAKLAND GETS A NEW BANK ESTABLISHED IN IT

Chinese-American Bank Has Leased the Eighth and Broadway Corner of Blake & Moffitt Block.

Oakland is to have another bank established within its business quarters, namely, the Chinese-American, organized by local capitalists headed by E. P. Vandercook, and incorporated with a large capitalization. A lease has been effected with the Blake & Moffitt estate, on favorable terms to the latter, for the Eighth and Broadway corner of the Blake & Moffitt block, 25x100, recently vacated by the E. B. & A. L. Stone Company. The lease is for five years with the privilege of a renewal for another five years. This will be the headquarters of the bank. It recently filed its articles of incorporation in San Francisco, where it is intended to establish a branch for the accommodation of the Chinese colony in that city. The significance of this movement is that the Chinese quarter in this city is a permanent institution. The premises leased are to be entirely remodeled as a modern banking establishment, with which is to be associated a latter-day safe deposit vault, to be built into the premises.

TOLD COURT HE KNEW BUT LITTLE ABOUT STANDARD OIL AFFAIRS, AS HE HAS BEEN OUT OF ALL BUSINESS FOR TWELVE YEARS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

CHICAGO, July 6.—The inquiry by Judge Landis of the United States District Court into the financial condition and resources of the Standard Oil company was begun and finished today inside of two hours. The court's object was to utilize this information in determining the amount of fines to be imposed upon the Standard Oil company of Indiana for violations of laws covering freight rates and rebating.

The chief witness was John D. Rockefeller, president of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey. Very little information was derived from him. He declared he had not been in active business for twelve years and said he had not been in the offices of the Standard Oil company for eight years. He declared that the capital stock of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey was about $100,000,000 and that its business was the refining of oil. He said that he did not know that the company had any other business and that if the Standard Oil company of New Jersey was interested in the ownership or operation of any refineries outside of the State of New Jersey he knew nothing of it.

From other witnesses Judge Landis derived the information that the Standard Oil company of New Jersey is the owner of a large proportion of the Standard Oil company of Indiana and that it also owned a large share of the Union Tank Line.

William D. Rockefeller and John D. Archbold were in court, but were not called upon to testify.

Called to the Witness Stand.

CHICAGO, July 6.—"John D. Rockefeller," called Judge Landis at 10:50 o'clock.

Amid great silence, the oil magnate rose and started for the chair. At the same moment the Standard Oil attorneys clustered around Judge Landis' desk and began a whispered consultation with him. Mr. Rockefeller hesitated.

"Sit right still a moment, John," said his brother, and Mr. Rockefeller resumed his seat.

Messrs. Miller and Rosenthal of the Standard Oil Company, United States District Attorney Sims and his assistant, Mr. Wilkerson, and Arthur Eddy, Chicago attorney for the Standard Oil Company, held a low-voiced conversation with Judge Landis, which stretched into the minutes, Mr. Rockefeller meanwhile waiting with a mildly curious expression on his face.

Finally an understanding as to his questioning was reached and the attorneys resumed their seats.

Mr. Rockefeller Takes Customary Oath

"John D. Rockefeller," again called Judge Landis, and the president of the Standard Oil Company left his seat, walked slowly to the witness chair at the right of Judge Landis and raised his right hand as the clerk administered the oath, "to swear to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, so help you God."

"I do," affirmed Mr. Rockefeller distinctly as the clerk finished. Mr. Rockefeller sat down, crossed his legs, leaned his right hand on his cane and put his left hand upon the judge's desk and looked intently at Judge Landis.

"Mr. Rockefeller," asked Judge Landis, "have you any connection with the Standard Oil Company?"

"I am president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey," said Mr. Rockefeller deliberately. "The position is purely an honorary one, and has been for the last eight or ten years," he resumed. "I have taken no active part in its affairs during that time."

"What is the outstanding capital stock of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey?" asked Judge Landis.

"Object," ejaculated Mr. Miller.

"Overruled," said Judge Landis.

Standard Oil Capitalized for $100,000,000

"I believe about $100,000,000 is outstanding," said Mr. Rockefeller.

ON THE WITNESS-STAND

John D. Rockefeller

CROWDS FOUGHT TO GET INTO THE COURTROOM

CHICAGO, July 6.—With his attorneys and eleven other officers of the Standard Oil Company, including William Rockefeller, John D. Rockefeller, the so-called richest man in the world, faced a Federal courtroom filled with attorneys and spectators today. He will be subjected to an examination conducted in person by Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, who has it within his power to hold the oil king in contempt of court should the witness decline to answer questions.

It was believed by those interested in the case that when Mr. Rockefeller raised his hand and accepted the oath he would tell all he knows concerning the financial relations between the Standard Oil Company of Indiana and the holding company of New Jersey.

He Is Immune From Prosecution.

Whether he will lay bare any of the financial secrets is to be determined when Judge Landis propounds his questions. Whatever may be Mr. Rockefeller's replies, he will in no way incriminate himself, for under the law he is immune from prosecution.

Because of the interest that has been aroused over Mr. Rockefeller's testimony.
